HISTORY
OF THE
BROOKLYN AND LONG ISLAND FAIR,
FEBRUARY 22, 1864.

FAIR is a bargain, when 'tis made
According to the rules of trade ;
Fair is the maid who sells these rhymes,
You've called her so a thousand times ;
Fair are the speeches—false as fair—
That oft in Congress vented are ;
Fair are the nymphs that throng Broadway
On every bonnet-opening day ;
In civil storms, as Job sets forth, (xxxvii. 22.)
" Fair weather cometh from the North :"
Fairmount by Schuykill's wave is fair :
Fairfield is famed for wholesome air :
Fair winds impel Fairhaven's sails,
Hunting in Arctic seas for whales ;
Fair was the fight at Nazeby, when Stout Fairfax beat King Charles' men :
And fair with treasures rich and rare
Is Brooklyn's Sanitary Fair.

HISTORY

OF THE

Brooklyn and Long Island Fair.

THE Brooklyn and Long Island Fair, in aid of the United States Sanitary Commission, was the first great act of self-assertion ever made by the City of Brooklyn. Previous to that we had contented ourselves as a community with believing that for beauty of local position, Brooklyn was rarely surpassed; a claim generally admitted. She had also, with remarkable unanimity, been allowed the soubriquet of the "City of Churches," although never exceeding the proportion of one church to two thousand persons. The census was an indisputable witness to the fact of the wondrous ratio in which her population had increased, till she was equally, beyond denial, the third city, in that respect, in the Union. Among the merchants of New York most prominent for intelligence, wealth, and consequent influence, were found many who resided within the walls of Brooklyn; while the crowds crossing her ferries to and from the Great Metropolis at morning and evening, showed how largely the entire business and labor of the latter were performed by our citizens.

Nevertheless, Brooklyn was but a suburb, overshadowed by her mighty neighbor. Travellers, foreign and native, in vast numbers, visited the chief commercial city of our country on errands of business or pleasure; but if not called to Brooklyn through personal claims of kindred or friendship, rarely sought it except to visit the great Navy Yard of the nation, or the most beautiful Cemetery in the world; severally so placed, on what was once her northern and what is still her southern boundary, that either could be reached while the City itself was practically ignored. The visitor came and went, having seen little or nothing of it except its unattractive outskirts, and with no longing awakened to see more. Meanwhile she had gathered to herself Public Schools, which had grown to rank among the best of the kind in the land; private or corporate institutions of education for either sex, which in their entire equipment, management, and efficiency would do honor to any community; a body of clergy, as a whole, and for their numbers not surpassed in character and gifts by those of any of our cities; great institutions of charity, too largely dependent, however, on annual contributions rather than permanent endowments; courses of lectures, delivered by the ablest men of the country, or by savans from abroad, travelling or resident in America; a well appointed Philharmonic Society, amply patronised and appreciated; an Academy of Music, the beauty and value of which the Fair has made to be more widely and palpably known; a Mercantile Library, which for seven years has met, in a measure, which we could wish vastly greater, an inevitable want of every progressive community; and an Historical Society, recently formed for the City and Island, which has started on its course with remarkable vigor. And yet withal, Brooklyn, till the Fair, had no status before the country beyond that of a remarkably quiet suburban town, where, after a hard day's labor, weary men found comfortable lodging places till the next day's work began. An account of the inception, prospects, and results of the Great Fair just closed.

may serve to open the popular eye to the fact that it was nothing less than a Great City which inaugurated, sustained, and carried it through.

A similar course of remark is applicable to Long Island. The Battle of Long Island and Washington's masterly retreat, great connected facts in our Revolutionary History, attracted to the Island the anxious eyes of that generation, and made its name famous in the national annals. But aside of being one of the great fruit and vegetable gardens for the supply of our city markets, it has been since that period known abroad chiefly for the fine watering places on the Bay and along its Sea-side, of great summer resort; and for numerous lovely villages on the Sound, where wealthy residents both of Brooklyn and New York have built elegant villas on some of the choicest rural spots of the vicinity. But a new era seems to have opened upon the Island since the beginning of the war. The spirit of the War Fund Committee and of the Woman's Relief Association became evident very early far beyond the limits of the City, or of the County of Kings. Associations like the latter came into existence in various places very soon after the outbreak of the Rebellion. Ninety miles down the Island, almost at the eastern extremity of its coast, the "Ladies' Relief Union" of Southold is coeval with the moment when our armies first took the field; and no sooner had the Sanitary Commission announced itself in being, than it began to receive the bounty of the loyal women of that remote village. We mean nothing invidious to the rest of the Island when we thus single out Southold. Hers is merely one example of what has been doing by other towns and villages all the way on its territory between itself and Brooklyn. The sequel will show how nobly and generously, when the Fair was proposed for the City and Island, the whole Island came up to the work. The generous spirits of both were hand in hand throughout. A large-hearted unity of plan and work was established through sympathy and interest in a grand common object, which it was delightful to witness, and more delightful to share. In our Appendix will be found, in full, the names of those of either sex who were actively engaged in arranging and managing the Fair, and a list of the contributions from all quarters to its Treasury. There it will be seen that the City vindicated her claim to be a "power" in the land by something better than the mere numbers of her population. She stood forth for once apart from New York, to help to the utmost of her means the noblest charity of the world, and proved herself alive to her proud position, her abundant wealth, her great privileges and opportunities. She summoned Long Island to her side, and she came. Together they carried through the work to a result far beyond the expectations of the most sanguine; and the thousands and tens of thousands thus gathered into the Treasury of the Fair, will be dispensed by the wise and faithful hands of the Sanitary Commission, for the relief and comfort of our heroic and suffering brothers in the field and the hospital.

THE SOURCES.

The Brooklyn and Long Island Fair was the creation jointly of the "War Fund Committee of Brooklyn and County of Kings," now consisting of one hundred and thirty of its prominent active citizens, acting through its Sanitary Committee, or "Committee on the U. S. Sanitary Commission and Hospitals;" and of the "Woman's Relief Association of the City of Brooklyn," recognized by the Commission as its "Brooklyn Auxiliary," to which the Sanitary Committee of the War Fund is Advisory, without whose concurrence none of its measures can be carried into effect. To show how excellent a working basis for the Fair already existed in these two organizations, consider the common objects had in view, and the machinery for operating on our community which they already had running when that was in contemplation.

The War Fund Committee grew in part out of the appointment, in the Summer of 1862, by the State Executive of New York, of Two Committees in the Second and Third Senatorial Districts, for the purpose of raising each a Regiment of Volunteers, to serve for three years, or during the war. The Board of Supervisors of this County appointed almost simultaneously a large Committee to aid in all measures for the increase of the Army and Navy. These several committees appear to have united in the conviction that a large central committee was indispensable to the work devolved on them; and at their suggestion and request the "War Fund Committee" was organized in September, 1862, and soon after confirmed and appointed by an immense public meeting of the citizens. This committee has among its special duties "to promote the objects of and to aid the Sanitary Commission;" and besides, "to do all in their power to aid in procuring Recruits; to do what may be needful in behalf of the sick and wounded; to aid discharged soldiers, and the families of deceased soldiers and sailors in procuring the pay or pensions to which they may be entitled; and to assist the Allotment Commissioners in their philanthropic work, and generally to use their efforts and influence in aiding the Government to suppress the Rebellion."

In its efforts in behalf of these objects the committee has made hundreds of applications for and secured pensions, bounties, pay in arrear, and prize money. Information and aid to a very large extent have been given to families of soldiers belonging to Brooklyn and other regiments; grants have been made from time to time in aid of the work of the Sanitary Commission, and considerable sums have been advanced to help forward the organization of Volunteer Regiments.

The "Woman's Relief Association" was fully organized December 6th, 1862; at which time, composed as it was intended to be of female delegates from the several churches of the City, thirty churches were thus represented; and by the end of April more than fifty had joined it and were in active co-operation. This Association has also for its objects "to stimulate, concentrate, and direct the philanthropic efforts of the community in behalf of the sick and wounded soldiers of our armies; to obtain and distribute reliable information concerning their immediate and prospective wants; to collect supplies of hospital stores and medical comforts of all kinds, and generally to advance the views and objects of the Sanitary Committee, as appointed by the 'War Fund Committee of the City of Brooklyn and County of Kings,' to which it shall be distinctly and permanently auxiliary, and to whose disposal all receipts, of whatsoever nature, shall be subject."

Thus it will be seen that with these common objects before them, and among which aid to the U. S. Sanitary Commission stood so prominent; representing as they did the loyal population of the City of either sex; actively engaged in, habituated to, and almost by a moral necessity profoundly interested in, the specific work of the Commission itself; with the most cordial and intimate relations to the Commission, cemented and confirmed by frequent and large contributions of hospital clothing and comforts to its stores; they were the prepared and natural agencies for inaugurating and carrying on the Fair.

In May, 1863, an appeal was made by the War Fund Sanitary Committee to the churches of Brooklyn, asking cash contributions for the purchase of materials for hospital clothing, to be made up by the families of our soldiers in the field through the agency of the Female Employment Society, one of the best benevolent organizations in the City; and which, though created long before the war for the object its name intimates, has rendered itself, as in the case before us, a most efficient co-laborer with those special organizations which had their origin in the war. The response placed about six thousand dollars in the hands of the Committee, which was an ample provision during the Summer, when many of the ladies of the City connected with the management of its charities were away, for aiding the soldiers' families and keeping up our quota of supplies to the Sanitary Commission.

In the following Autumn it was found that the Woman's Relief Association, through the Sanitary Committee of the War Fund, and during the first year of its existence, had turned into the depot of the Sanitary Commission supplies of hospital clothing to the value of about fifty thousand dollars. It became a serious question with the Committee whether fresh appeals should be made to the churches, or whether some new plan could be devised by which the citizens of Brooklyn could be brought into active and efficient sympathy with the work of the Woman's Relief Association for the Winter of 1863-4. Early in October the plan of a great Fair for the City, was suggested by Mr. James H. Frothingham, of the Committee, and he and the Chairman, Mr. Dwight Johnson, conferred with the President of the Sanitary Commission, Dr. Bellows, and corresponded with friends in Boston, where great Fairs had been held with eminent success, on the best mode of conducting them. Dr. Bellows was not at first impressed very favorably by the suggestion; and when, on the 6th of November following, the Sanitary Committee brought the matter before the stated meeting of the Woman's Relief Association in the form of a general plan for a Great City Fair, expressing their conviction that if undertaken with unanimity and zeal by them, seventy to eighty thousand dollars might be realized for the Sanitary Commission, it met with no marked favor by the Ladies assembled. It was feared that our local charities, whose annual fairs were already being prepared for, would suffer too seriously by such an undertaking. The Ladies, however, after further deliberation, suggested that the Great Fair might perhaps be postponed to some day in February, and the subject was laid over by common consent till the next meeting.

Meanwhile, on the 14th of the same month of November, the Ladies of New York, under the auspices of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, announced by a circular the project of a Great Metropolitan Fair, to begin in that city on the 22d of February, 1864. The circular was sent to ladies in Brooklyn, inviting their presence and co-operation at a meeting in New York; when it was proposed to assign a department of the Fair to Brooklyn, but the Fair still to be held in New York.

On the 20th of November, the Woman's Relief Association of Brooklyn decided to unite in the effort, as the Brooklyn Division of the Metropolitan Fair, leaving open the question in which city the Brooklyn Division would carry on their work.

On the 21st inst. the Brooklyn Sanitary Committee had an interview with Dr. Bellows upon the subject. They represented to him the great advantages already possessed in the City through the Woman's Relief Association, for bringing into active effect the sympathies and energies of our whole loyal population in behalf of a Fair to be held in our own City; and the inevitable disadvantage and inconvenience to our Ladies, of instituting and keeping up a Brooklyn Division of the Fair at the distance of at least four miles from many of their homes. At the close of the conference there was the most cordial concurrence of opinion that to the Woman's Relief Association should be left the decision of the question. On these facts being reported to the War Fund Committee they met the warmest reception.

THE INITIATORY STEPS.

A special meeting of the Woman's Relief Association was held on the 24th of November, when with full knowledge of the above facts, the Ladies, in anticipation of a great Fair, decided to increase the representation from the respective churches, the better to inaugurate the work.

On the 4th of December a very large meeting of the Association was held in the Chapel of the Packer Female Institute.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. J. S. T. Stranahan. Miss Waterbury, acting as Secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved. Mr. Dwight Johnson, Secretary of the Sanitary Committee, was introduced and made an interesting statement of the objects of the meeting. He stated that New York had incorporated a movement for a great Metropolitan Fair, which was to be opened on the 22d of February next. "It is to be an attempt to revive the great Market Fairs of the old world, and will be continued for two weeks, for the benefit of our sick and wounded soldiers. Every branch of trade or industry, of art or skill, every kind of ability—mechanical, ornamental, artistic, useful, amusing, instructive, humane—will be expected to contribute to the result. Every workshop, house, or store, every heart and hand, will be asked, and will be glad to give something, great or small. It was at first contemplated to invite Brooklyn, Jersey City, and surrounding towns to take part in this great demonstration. But it had been thought better for this City to make an independent effort in the same direction, especially as it would have the aid of an important auxiliary association, now in active operation, and numbering among its members representatives of nearly every church in the City. They would be able to invoke the aid of every influence—the Fire Department, the Philharmonic Society, and other organizations, which would insure the success of the movement, and enable our City to make a demonstration that would redound to its credit throughout the country, and give comfort to our sick soldiers. Ours is a City of three hundred thousand inhabitants, and we should make ourselves felt and appreciated, and accomplish as much relatively as the City of New York."

Mrs. Stranahan said the design of the Woman's Relief Association was to expand itself. Some resolutions had been prepared which would be read. Mrs. Dr. Duffin then read the following resolutions, which were adopted :

THE RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That the name of the Executive Committee be changed to Executive Board, and that it have power to add to its number.

Resolved, That the Executive Board be empowered to add to the present members from each church. Also to appoint members from outside church organizations, the whole number not to exceed one thousand.

Resolved, That the War Fund Committee be requested to appoint an Advisory Committee of twenty-five or more to assist us in carrying out the object and plan of the Fair.

Addresses were also made by Rev. Drs. Buddington, Farley and Spear; and Dr. Spear in his enthusiasm ventured a prediction, which doubtless most of those who were present thought very extravagant, that one hundred and fifty thousand dollars would thereby be realized.

On Saturday evening the 5th of December, a meeting of the War Fund Committee was held at their rooms, to which the Sanitary Committee invited a large number of citizens, that they might "unite in making arrangements for the Brooklyn Division of the Metropolitan Fair." The meeting was attended by about a hundred persons of recognized influence in the community. After it had been addressed at length in a thrilling speech by Rev. Mr. Hatfield, and by others both of the clergy and laity, it was resolved "that a committee of sixty Gentlemen be named by the Chair, who shall have power as a General Committee to add to their number at their discretion, to co-operate with the Ladies of the Woman's Relief Association in arranging for and conducting the Brooklyn Division of the Great Metropolitan Fair." For this Committee see Appendix.

Immediately after the meeting adjourned, the Committee thus appointed met and organized, electing Mr. A. A. Low its President. On motion, a Special Committee of five was appointed, who with the Sanitary Committee shall, at a future meeting, nominate an Executive Committee of Gentlemen and form and propose a plan of operations by which most efficiently to aid the Ladies in the arrangement and conduct of the Fair. This Committee, besides the Sanitary Committee, consisted of Messrs. Stranahan, Mills, Buckley, Benson, and Snow. The Committee of Ten thus constituted went industriously to work. They met every evening for a week; and on the 17th of December issued a call to the General Committee to meet them on Saturday evening the 19th, to deliberate on a final plan of operations then to be submitted.

A meeting of the Woman's Relief Association was held in the chapel of Packer Institute on Friday morning, December 18. An address was made by Dr. Farley, in which he gave an account of the great Fair then in progress in Boston, which Brooklyn, having set out with the hope of equalling, if possible, has immensely surpassed. Dwight Johnson, Esq., Secretary of the Sanitary Committee of the Brooklyn War Fund, also made an interesting statement of the progress thus far in the preparations for the Fair. At this meeting Mr. Johnson stated that, when it was first suggested as possible to raise $100,000 to $150,000, he did not think it could be done; he had now changed his opinion, and thought even the larger sum might be reached, if not exceeded. The spirit was rising. It soon ran up to fever heat. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher also made some glowing remarks, in which he proposed that Brooklyn should give New York a good run for the precedence.

Notices were now sent to the Sewing Societies of the several Churches, and to the towns and villages of Long Island, asking their co-operation, and inviting them to send hospital stores to the Brooklyn Division of the Fair; promising that they should be credited in the final result to the full amount and value of their contributions. In response, articles were sent from various places to the value of nearly twenty-seven hundred dollars. Thus early was the active co-operation of the Island secured.

It is very certain that, had the two Fairs been held simultaneously in New York and Brooklyn, the latter would even then have run the Metropolis hard. But the division of the plan helped the cause amazingly. Brooklyn was put upon her mettle to show a prond record, while New York has been spurred to redoubled efforts to make her Fair worthy of her metropolitan fame and resources. It cannot be questioned that at least quadruple the sum will be realized to the Sanitary Commission from the two Fairs, that would have been yielded by a single Fair held in New York.

THE MEETING WHICH DROVE THE NAIL AND CLINCHED IT.

On Saturday evening, December 19th, a meeting of the War Fund Committee was held pursuant to the call of the Committee of Ten, above noted. This meeting was held at the chapel of the Polytechnic Institute, and proved to be of the most marked character for its enthusiastic spirit and action. Mr. Low presided, and Hon. Edward A. Lambert acted as Secretary. The nominations which the Committee of Ten presented of the Executive Committee and its officers were confirmed. Hon. J. S. T. Stranahan reported to the meeting the progress that had been made, stating that the Committee on Organization had had a number of meetings to perfect a plan. They had consulted with the Woman's Relief Association, who had requested them to assist in raising a fund for the benefit of our sick and wounded soldiers.

Mr. James H. Frothingham, the Treasurer of the Advisory Board, said that the consideration of the question by the board had led to the adoption of the three following resolutions :

Resolved, That in accordance with the request conveyed in a resolution adopted by the Woman's Relief Association of the City of Brooklyn, at their meeting of December 4th, 1863, the following gentlemen are appointed an Advisory Board, to co-operate with them in the conduct of the Brooklyn Division of the Metropolitan Fair, to be opened on the 22d of February, 1864, in aid of the work of the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

Resolved, That the Advisory Board are empowered to adopt such measures as they may deem best to give effect to their appointment, and shall apply the proceeds of the Fair to the use of the U. S. Sanitary Commission under the direction of the Sanitary Committee of the Woman's Relief Association of the City of Brooklyn.

Resolved, That the Advisory Board be empowered to add to the members of the General Committee.

Dr. Farley, here, by request, made a report of his visit to the Boston Fair, made by authority of the General Committee. The method of organization and operation of that Fair for the first two days was detailed in aid of the present deliberations. Dwight Johnson, Esq., Rev. T. L. Cuyler, A. A. Low, Esq., and Walter S. Griffith, Esq., also made brief and earnest speeches. Then rose Mr. John D. McKenzie, who made a speech effective and emphatically to the point. We quote from a report of his remarks in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, of December 21:

Mr. McKenzie said, referring to the language used by Mr. Johnson in introducing him, in commendation of his efforts in behalf of the poor colored people of New York after the great riots:

Mr. Chairman—I had supposed that the New York riots and the woes of the wronged and oppressed people who suffered in them were things of the past. Henry Ward Beecher, (I wish he was here to-night), referring to these disturbances and the good which had grown out of them, alluded to me in his speech at London as one who had “hated him with Christian hatred for the last sixteen years.” Well, sir, if I did so, I was as Saul of Tarsus when he held the clothes of the men who stoned the martyr Stephen: I knew not what I did. But, sir, God educates men fast if they submit themselves to His teaching, and He is educating all of us up to the point where we should have been long ago; to the determination that, when this Rebellion is put down, the blot and the shame which has disgraced our nation so long shall be wiped out at once and forever.

The speaker then alluded to the special object of the meeting. In coming up to this place, and thinking of the circumstances of comfort which surround us all—our bright fire-sides, the sweet faces and voices of our children—and then of the poor soldier, ontyling and watching in the darkness and the cold, suffering all manner of exposure and privation, engaged in deadly strife, or lying disabled after the struggle, and all to secure and perpetuate these fire-sides, and these altars—his heart was stirred within him. He spoke of the blessed influence of the Sanitary Commission. He wished the gentlemen could have been with him in passing through the hospital tents after the battle of Antietam. When he saw those suffering heroes—suffering for him, and those dear to him, and thought how hard it was that now neither mother, nor sister, nor daughter, nor friend could be near them and minister to them, he rejoiced to think that this heavenly agency of charity was there to perform the part of mother, and sister, and daughter and friend.

He congratulated the audience on the catholic feeling among ourselves which this effort was bringing about. Here were men of all persuasions in politics and religion, working together cheerfully in a holy cause, and feeling more and more of the spirit of brotherhood every moment.

During Mr. McKenzie’s admirable speech the enthusiasm rose very high, and when he closed by calling attention to a paper which he laid upon the table, and from which the Secretary read the name of John D. McKenzie, heading a form of subscription with a contribution of one thousand dollars, it knew no bounds, and the applause was tumultuous.

It is certainly not invidious to say that this splendid opening made the Fair the grand thing it proved to be. Straightway a rivalry of generosity began which had never before been equalled. Mr. Low took the paper, and made a few remarks, in which he pleasantly said that the only fitting response he could make to Mr. McKenzie’s speech was to do likewise. He should put down his name for $2,500. Great applause followed this second liberal contribution. We give, from the Union of December 21st, a report of this grand meeting, which gives but a faint idea of the enthusiasm and spirit which pervaded it to the close:

Mr. S. B. Chittenden subscribed $1,000.

Mr. Peter C. Cornell wished to subscribe $1,000.

Mr. Henry E. Pierrepont subscribed $1,000.

As each name was called the hall rang with plaudits.

Mr. Henry Sheldon subscribed $1,000.

Another gentleman expressed his desire to take $1,000 worth of Sanitary Commission stock, as it was a sound concern.

The President said that this was a very good beginning.

Mr. George B. Archer subscribed $1,000.

The President expressed the extreme pleasure he felt in presiding over such a meeting.

Then came some $500 subscriptions, among which were the names of Messrs. J. W. Frothingham and Stranahan. There were at least a dozen gentlemen on the floor at one time, each waiting to have his name put down.

The President, beaming with jollity, said, with a twinkle in his eye, that he did not think the preliminary proceedings in Boston were any better than these. [Immense applause.]

Rev. Dr. Farley spoke at some length in regard to the merits of the Sanitary Commission, which he said stood forth as the acknowledged instrument of healing for the men who had gone forth to fight our battles.

Ex-Mayor Hall moved that a committee be appointed to call on every citizen in Brooklyn for a dollar subscription.

The President said that a committee for the purpose had already been appointed. He suggested the appointing of ward committees.

Mr. Frothingham spoke in favor of Mr. Hall's suggestion and moved that it be referred to a committee. A motion was made to adjourn.

Alex. Wallace said that he hoped the President would not allow the meeting to adjourn, as there were a large number of gentlemen present who wished to contribute.

Mr. Seymour L. Husted contributed $1,000. [Long continued applause.]

Mr. W. H. Lyon subscribed $250, and was followed by a number of other gentlemen.

Some other gentlemen then went into the $500 business again.

A gentleman at the lower end of the hall stated that he was authorized to say that a gentleman present wished the Secretary to put him down for $1,000.

Immense excitement and cries of "Name him," "Who is it?"

THE GENTLEMAN—"E. T. H. Gibson." [Long-continued applause.]

The use of the hall of the Polytechnic was tendered by I. H. Frothingham, Esq., free of cost.

He was followed by a gentleman who made the same offer in regard to the Packer Institute.

Mr. Chittenden said he had, in Connecticut, a pair of Devon steers in tolerable condition, which he would make as fat as possible on Yankee corn, and present to the Fair.

A motion was made to adjourn, but withdrawn.

The subscriptions then commenced again.

After a number of gentlemen had subscribed, remarks were made by various gentlemen, and the meeting adjourned till Tuesday evening, at the Academy of Music.

We have given a report of this meeting at some length, because it was, as has been remarked, the meeting which made the success of the Fair a certainty. The enthusiasm of the proceedings was delightful to witness. From this point the progress of the Fair was like rolling a snowball down hill. It gave the enterprise an immense momentum, and thenceforward it gathered as it went.

On the 21st of December the Ladies' Executive Committee gave public notice that one member of the Board would be in daily attendance at the depot of the Woman's Relief Association, No. 30 Court street, between 10 A. M. and 3 P. M., to give information upon the subject of the Fair.

Before the end of December the subscription which Mr. McKenzie had started had reached a point of more than fifty thousand dollars, through the activity of the chairmen of the several special committees who had been appointed from the Executive Committee.

Towards the end of the month the managers of the Metropolitan Fair, on the part of the New York Division, had decided that it must be postponed from the 22d of February to the 28th of March.* The Ladies who represented the Brooklyn Division, the Gentlemen's Committee coinciding, felt on the contrary that it would be entirely bad policy to accede to such a postponement. The enthusiasm in Brooklyn was at its height; the 22d of February was hallowed and heart-stirring in its associations, and they could not afford to ignore or lose them. That must be the day for the Fair in this City. Accordingly, as we shall see, a cordial separation took place; the new policy was everywhere on this side the river greeted with immense satisfaction by our citizens; and the event justified its wisdom to the full.

On Saturday evening, December 28th, a meeting of the Executive Committee was held at the rooms of the War Fund Committee, at which it was announced that arrangements had been made for holding a public meeting at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening, January 2d, in behalf of the Fair. At this meeting interesting reports were made of the progress of the work. It was announced that the Catholic Clergy were taking an interest in the matter, and had promised to urge it upon the attention of their parishioners. Mr. A. A. Low made a generous proffer of ground for the location of the Fair buildings. The meeting showed that a spirit of generous rivalry was rapidly developing itself among all classes of our citizens.

BROOKLYN CUTS ENTIRELY FREE FROM LEADING-STRINGS.

The regular weekly meeting of the Woman's Relief Association, held at Packer Institute on Wednesday morning, December 30th, was an occasion of peculiar interest. The President, Mrs. J. S. T. Stranahan, explained that in consequence of the Ladies of New York having postponed the time of opening the Metropolitan Fair from February 22d to March 28th, the question arose whether Brooklyn should proceed now without regard to the arrangements of New York. Resolutions were unanimously adopted to open our Fair on the 22d of February, in the Academy of Music and adjacent grounds; changing the name of the Executive Board to that of "Executive Committee of Ladies," and requesting the Gentlemen of the Advisory Committee to assume the name of Executive Committee of Gentlemen. The Executive Committees were authorized to perform all the duties necessary to carry out the objects of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair.

Thus, promptly and fearlessly, Brooklyn cut her leading-strings, asserted her full grown manhood, (and womanhood) and started boldly to walk alone. She not only walked, but ran, and soared, and amazed even herself by the development of a truly gigantic strength.

Colonel Hawkins, of the famous Hawkins' Zouaves, was then introduced, and made a powerful and brilliant address, in which he spoke of the noble work done in this war by the Sanitary Commission. He commended the loyal women of our country very highly for the efficient part they had taken in this struggle for national life, and took occasion to urge upon them a renewed and higher consecration of their time and efforts to the great work. The gallant Colonel closed his truly thrilling address amid great enthusiasm.

Rev. Mr. Foss, of the South Fifth Street M. E. Church, also made a forcible address in behalf of the cause.

This meeting gave a fresh impulse to the work. Additions were made to the committees from persons out of the city for the purpose of operating upon and concentrating the interest and efforts of our Island population upon the Fair. A general circular, with full lists of the entire organization of both sexes, was prepared by the Corresponding Secretary, (vid. Appendix,) and sent forth far and wide. The Special Committees, besides, sent forth their own circulars in their respective and special walks or departments of effort. The Academy of Music was engaged; and arrangements were instituted and rapidly matured for other buildings, as the case might require; and the City became, throughout all classes of the people, intent, energetic, enthusiastic to the highest degree, in preparation for what all felt was the People's work, the People's pride, the People's duty.

PUBLIC MEETING AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Saturday evening, January 2d, a public meeting in behalf of the Fair was held at the Academy of Music. The night was one of extreme bitterness; so cold, in fact, that it was impossible to warm any large building so as to be comfortable, and the consequence was, that, so far as numbers were concerned, the meeting was not what was anticipated.

Still, a goodly number of ladies and gentlemen, who depended upon the warmth of their hearts in the cause to overmatch the frigid atmosphere, were present, and a great impulse was given to the work.

Mr. A. A. Low presided, and made some happy remarks in opening the meeting, upon the propriety of the step which Brooklyn was now taking to have a Fair in her own borders. He said he hoped that the effect of the meeting would be to quicken noble purposes into noble deeds, and that all would be able to leave with the conviction that it was good for them to have been there.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was then introduced, and made a speech of characteristic power. He spoke of the confidence he had in the Sanitary Commission, and remarked :

I should be proud to have Brooklyn stand, if not first, at least high upon the roll of honor, and still further should be proud to have my own people stand highest among you ; but local pride, though it might have a subordinate place, is not that to which I would appeal. It is to that common to you and all the people of New York and the whole land ; our common love of humanity, our common love of country, our common love of God, who, in the person of his Son, our Saviour, went about doing good, healing the sick, and comforting the suffering. It is to these higher motives that I would appeal, and I know I would not appeal in vain ; and when Brooklyn shall have accomplished her labor of love, I know there will be not one thing to be ashamed of, but much to be proud of, and that God shall be pleased with the offering we shall bring.

Rev. Dr. Porter, of Williamsburg, was next introduced, and made a few remarks as the representative of the Eastern District. In conclusion the reverend gentleman pledged himself that in the Eastern District the people would be in nowise behind those of any part of the City.

Hon. M. F. Odell, the able and patriotic representative in Congress of the III^d. District, Brooklyn, then made a strong appeal for the Sanitary Commission, which he said was the best charity on earth. Mr. Odell related a large number of incidents of his personal experience in testing the benefits of the Commission on the battle-field, which had a powerful effect in opening the eyes of the people of Brooklyn to the full value and importance of the great charity whose hands they were laboring to strengthen.

Mr. Odell in his peroration said :

There is a class of men at the North who do not feel any sympathy for this movement. I see them in prospective, and feel sorry for them. By-and-bye this war will be over, our flag will wave in triumph over every foot of territory in the thirty-four States, we shall have obtained the boon we fought so well for, and our country will be worth more than she ever was before—and I am one of those who believe she is worth more to-day than when Sumter was assailed, worth more because we have given much more for her, and in consequence we prize her more dearly—but to-day the men who are standing in our defence, and giving their lives for us, have claims on every man, woman and child in this city and country ; and I am sorry for that man, when this Rebellion is passed, who will have disregarded these claims. Sad will be his case who has not given his mite of aid to help crush it out. I hope sincerely that from this meeting, and from other gatherings of this kind, shall go out an influence which shall extend and widen ; and that when this Fair shall have ended, it shall be found that Brooklyn is first of all the cities of the country in her munificence to the Sanitary Commission, and through them to the soldiers who are fighting our battles.

Rev. A. A. Willitts was the next speaker, who was followed by S. B. Chittenden, Esq. ; both these gentlemen spoke with feeling and power.

Rev. R. M. Hatfield and Mr. George B. Lincoln added a few words, and the meeting then adjourned.

MUNICIPAL PERMISSION.

The Board of Aldermen, at their regular meeting Monday evening, January 17th, gave the managers of the Fair permission to erect the buildings necessary for the Fair.

On the 19th of January, the Committee on Internal Arrangements and Reception of Goods, gave public notice that they were prepared to receive donations of goods, produce, &c., and receipt for the same, at the following places :

SMALL PACKAGES OF DRY OR FANCY GOODS.

GROCERIES, WET AND HEAVY GOODS.

Ford's Stores ; Pierrepont's Stores ; Thomas's Stores ; Woodruff & Robinson's Stores.

PUBLIC MEETING AT GREENPOINT.

On Tuesday evening, January 19th, a spirited public meeting was held in the Reformed Dutch Church, at Greenpoint, in aid of the Fair. The meeting was addressed by Rev. H. J. Eddy, Chaplain of the Thirty-third Illinois Regiment, who gave a thrilling and graphic account of the siege of Vicksburg, and the battles in its vicinity, and the prompt and efficient aid afforded the sick and wounded soldiers of General Grant's army by the U. S. Sanitary Commission.

Rev. E. S. Porter, of Williamsburg, also made one of his strong, eloquent, and convincing appeals in behalf of the soldiers and the Fair.

MEETING OF COMMITTEE ON INTERNAL ARRANGEMENTS, ETC.

On Saturday evening, January 16th, at a meeting of the Committee on Internal Arrangements and Reception of Goods, an important report was received from a sub-committee, appointed January 9th, to apportion space, &c., to exhibitors, which was adopted.

On the 23d of January, Mr. Stephenson in behalf of the Gentlemen's, and Mrs. Archer of the Ladies' Committees on Internal Arrangements issued the following circular, which was placed in the newspapers, and widely distributed through the Island in a separate form :

TO ALL WOMEN INTERESTED IN AND WORKING FOR THE BROOKLYN AND LONG ISLAND FAIR :

In order to meet and answer as far as possible the many questions asked relative to the arrangement and appropriation of the tables at the approaching Fair to be held in aid of the Sanitary Commission, the Joint Committee "On Internal Arrangement and Reception of Goods" beg leave to submit herewith the following plan as the one in their judgment best calculated to promote the general interests of the Fair.

After careful and mature deliberation, it is the firm conviction and belief of the committee that we can best serve the cause we are all aiming to promote by having no tables of religious or other organizations distinctly as such.

In the judgment of the Committee it is much to be desired that our citizens on this occasion, ignoring all party or sectarian lines, should all unite as with one heart in aid of the noblest charity which has ever been presented to our people.

As it is, however, the disposition of the Committee to meet as far as may be the wishes of all interested as contributors, should there be any religious or other organizations desirous of a separate table, and willing to assume the responsibility of furnishing and maintaining such table during the continuance of the Fair, such organization, by making official application in writing to the Chairman of the Gentlemen's Committee, George S.

Stephenson, 16 Court street, on or before the first day of February next, can have table room assigned to it, as far as the same may be possible and consistent with the other arrangements of the Committee.

The Committee beg leave to assure all contributors that, by sending their donations to this Committee at the time and place of which due notice will be given, they will be carefully arranged for display and sale; and that donations from churches, societies and individuals will be accredited to them respectively, and formally acknowledged.

Religious or other organizations which may be represented by separate tables, will be expected to appoint two ladies for each table, to be their responsible heads; such ladies to select such assistants to act as saleswomen during the Fair as may be necessary, subject, however, to such regulations as the Committee may deem it proper to prescribe.

All other appointments of ladies to act as heads of departments and saleswomen, and the arrangement and designation of tables, will be made by the Committee at the earliest practicable moment, from the different denominations, and due notice given of the same.

The report was accompanied by diagrams, etc., showing the general plan adopted by the Committee. The excellent results of the system adopted, are spoken of elsewhere. The Sub-Committee above, consisted of Messrs. Isaac H. Frothingham, Alex. M. White, and James O. Morse.

MEETING AT FLATBUSH.

On Thursday evening, January 21st, a large meeting was held in the Reformed Dutch Church, in Flatbush, to concentrate the efforts of that suburb in behalf of the Fair. Revs. S. Street, of York, Pa., and A. A. Willits, of this City, severally made addresses. The meeting was a source of abundant good.

THE LONG ISLAND TOWNS.

Meanwhile the good people of the Island were not behind in preparations for the Fair. Public meetings were held in most of the towns, large and efficient committees appointed, and every energy used to bring out a handsome representation from the Island on the occasion.

THE BUILDINGS.

It was determined to erect two temporary structures for the Fair; one on a lot, the use of which was loaned by A. A. Low, Esq., adjoining the Academy of Music, on the west, to be 68 by 100 feet, and two stories in height, and the other to be located on a lot opposite the Academy, loaned for the purpose by Mrs. Packer, to be 100 feet square, and one story high. The first of these buildings was to be occupied by the restaurant, and was called Knickerbocker Hall, and the latter by the Hall of Manufactures and the New England Kitchen. This building was to communicate with the Academy by a covered way, or bridge, elevated above Montague street at a sufficient height not to interfere with public travel. Ground was broken on the 23d of January, and under the energetic management of Arthur W. Benson, Esq., Chairman of the Building Committee, they were completed in ample season. A committee of builders, consisting of Messrs. E. L. Roberts, P. F. O'Brien, and D. S. Voorhies, took charge of the practical part of the work, and to the skill and assiduity of these gentlemen the prompt completion and excellence of the work is due.

The large building on the northeast corner of Montague and Clinton streets, known as the Taylor Mansion, was also engaged for the use of the Fair. In this the Museum of Arts, Relics, and Curiosities was located, and also the editorial rooms of the Drum-Beat.

From this time onward the work of preparation progressed apace. The Executive Committee and various sub-committees held frequent meetings, always reporting satisfactory progress. Donations of all kinds began to flow in, and the public prints teemed with acknowledgments of contributions. The warm interest which the people at large took in the Fair was manifested by numerous communications to the papers, containing suggestions, wise, or otherwise, to the managers concerning the arrangements making. Everything was discussed; some matters, such as prices, and the propriety or policy of permitting the sale of wine, and raffling at the Fair, were discussed warmly. The Executive Committee gave careful heed to all these suggestions, adopting the good with cordiality, and rejecting the bad without compunction. On the whole, it is believed, their decisions gave general satisfaction. At all events, it is certain that the good of the cause was the sole and all-compelling spring of their action.

The Academy was opened for the reception of goods from February 15th to 18th, inclusive, and the vast influx astonished even those who were best informed of the progress of the work.

THE OFFICIAL PROGRAMME.

On Friday, February 19th, all being ready for the announcement, the Official Programme was promulgated, the features of which, not already noted, were as follows :

On Monday, the 22d of February inst., the Birth-day of Washington, the Fair will commence in this City. The Committees hope that all business will, as far as possible, be suspended, and the day made a holiday for all classes of the population.

In the afternoon there will be a grand parade of the entire military force of the City, passing the Academy in review at three o'clock precisely, including, it is hoped, the soldiers of our regiments in the army on furlough, and the United States Marines from the Navy Yard.

At seven o'clock P. M., the various departments of the Fair will be thrown open.

Dodworth's full band will be in attendance on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings of the first week, and on those of Friday and Saturday the band of the U. S. Receiving Ship North Carolina, kindly detailed for the service by Captain Meade.

A large corps of Marshals to aid the Ladies at the tables, and the Committee on Internal Arrangements, have volunteered for the purpose, and a sufficient Police force will be on duty.

The procession passed the Academy prompt to the hour of three, and in the following order: First came a detachment of Policemen; then a squadron of mounted men from the Seventieth Regiment of Light Artillery; then

The Regiments were all in fine condition, and displayed an accuracy in marching, a readiness and thoroughness of discipline, and a soldierly appearance every way creditable to them. The young Polytechnic Cadets, too, won high honors.

ALL READY.

At a few minutes before seven o'clock, P. M., the doors of the several departments of the Fair were thrown open. We shall now proceed to take up each department in order, and give a sketch of their arrangements, and the prominent incidents which occurred in them during the Fair, noting, as space will permit, the principal features of interest in each.

THE GREAT CENTRAL BAZAAR.

The great central Bazaar, for the sale of articles for the Fair, was held in the Academy of Music, the entire building, with the exception of the "Assembly Room"—which was occupied as an Art Gallery—being used for the purpose. The ground floor of the Academy was boarded over, level with the stage, making a magnificent hall, with an area of 10,570 square feet. The second floor and lobbies, added an area of 9,730, making the total area devoted to the sale of goods in the Academy of Music, 20,300 square feet.

THE DECORATIONS.

The decorations of the Academy were very beautiful, and their patriotic nature was in fine keeping with the character of the great enterprise. From the centre of the Auditorium ceiling was suspended a mass of brilliantly colored bunting, giving the graceful effect of a swinging column. From the bottom of this was suspended, by invisible wires, an American eagle, which seemed to hover in mid-air over the majestic scene below. From the apex of the column of drapery sprung radiating bands of red, white, and blue bunting, which, stretching in graceful curves until they touched the pillars of the amphitheatre, were thence twined, and drooped, and festooned around the whole circle of the building. Above the arch of the stage, in letters formed of tiny jets of gas, blazed the inscription, "IN UNION IS STRENGTH."

The back wall of the stage was completely screened by a mammoth painting of a Field Hospital Tent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, with nurses, wounded soldiers, etc. The rough wood-work above the side scenes was skilfully concealed by draperies of white and colored muslin, and flags were everywhere displayed in profusion. The huge crimson drop-curtain was caught up and stretched along the ceiling of the stage, thus entirely hiding its rude surface, and giving at the same time a brilliant effect. Many elegant paintings were also displayed in the Auditorium, while the superb afghans, and many-colored quilts, with which the vast building was fairly tapestried, added their vivid splendors to the effect of the toute ensemble. When the magnificent building was flooded at night with the splendor of a thousand gas jets, it presented a spectacle which was nothing less than enchanting. The fairy garden of Aladdin, blazing with its fruitage of gems, could not have been more brilliantly beautiful. To the fine taste of Messrs. Benson and Degrau, aided by the skilful corps of Mr. William Paine, the well-known decorator, of 300 Fulton avenue, who loaned much of the material, and gave his personal services in the most generous manner, the public are indebted for the complete success of the decorative department.

Dodworth's Band, or the Band of the North Carolina, stationed in the Family Circle, furnished exquisite music every night, as long as the Fair lasted.

THE INTERIOR ARRANGEMENTS OF THE AUDITORIUM.

If the reader will now make the tour with us of this vast and splendid Bazaar, we will endeavor to point out the localities of the principal departments, and to reduce this great and dazzling mass to the elements of which it was composed.

ARRANGEMENT OF THE TABLES.

There probably never was an enterprise of the vast proportions of this Fair, which was so admirably systematized, considering the brief time that was permitted to perfect and carry the system of organization into execution. From the opening of the Fair, to its close, not the slightest indication of confusion in the workings of the machinery was visible to the observer, although no one but those who had the complicated arrangements in charge can estimate or appreciate the amount of thought, energy, and labor which were required to keep everything moving on with such delightful harmony and precision. But this was all below the surface. To the public, everything proceeded from day to day with as much order and regularity as if the Fair had been a vast business establishment wherein years of experience had been devoted to systematizing its operations.

The plan adopted after careful deliberation, by the Committee on Internal Arrangements and Reception of Goods, and which is more fully explained in the circular of the Committee heretofore published, was to have as few tables as possible under the exclusive control of societies or individuals. This plan, which was cheerfully acceded to except in a few cases where for special reasons churches desired a separate table, enabled the Committee to regulate the internal economy of the Fair upon a comprehensive system which should be under their entire control. To this wise decision, doubtless, much of the wonderful order and success of the Fair are to be attributed. The goods were separated into classes, as far as was practicable; and thus after a single glance around the Fair, the purchaser could tell just where to go to find the particular kind of goods wanted. Thus the necessity of visiting a dozen different parts of the building in order to ascertain what the extent and variety of the stock of that kind of goods in the Fair might be, was completely obviated, and the care and labor of selection very greatly lessened. If worsted goods were wanted, there was a department especially for that description of articles. If glass-ware, silver-ware, childrens' goods, perfumery, stationery was the object of search, they could be found each in its appropriate place.

The stalls of the ground floor were arranged in concentric arcs of circles, the space between each line of stalls being about four feet. The advantage of such an arrangement as this, in a building like the Academy, is obvious. A large space in the centre of the building was left vacant (with the exception of a platform for pianos,) for the accommodation of the people. On the whole, we do not see how the arrangement of the stalls could have been improved. The system of ushers was also admirably effective, and too much praise cannot be awarded to the gentlemen who performed that office with so much patience, prudence, and gallantry. The plan early adopted, and rigidly enforced, and which we are happy to say was acceded to by the public with the utmost good humor as a recognized matter of necessity, was to make the visitor enter the Auditorium by the centre door, and leave by one of the two side doors. This prevented all confusion at the entrance.

To begin in order: Entering the Academy by the grand entrance, on the right was the ticket office; next to this was the Police head-quarters, under charge of Inspector Folk, and Sergeants Cornell and Mathews. There probably will not be a better place than here to pay a just tribute to the police force charged with the preservation of order at the Fair. Perfectly gentlemanly, always attentive, and sleeplessly vigilant, they won golden opinions from everybody. The police had little occasion to make arrests, as there were no disturbances to quell, and few rogues about. They were of great service in restoring lost articles to their owners, and at all times a trunk full of handkerchiefs, furs, etc., awaiting claimants, was to be found at the Police head-quarters. Articles worth thousands of dollars were in this way returned during the Fair.

Mr. A. R. Frothingham, the Chief Marshal, was indefatigable in his attention to his duties, and his energy and skill assured the thorough carrying out of the various rules adopted for the conduct of business, and the preservation of order in the Fair.

Proceeding, we come to the turnstile, which admits to Knickerbocker Hall, and keeps the crowd constantly entering and emerging from that popular place in their relative positions. Flanking this is the Hat and Coat Room. We next come to the door of the "Directors' Room," over which is a sign, "General Executive Committee." The front room was the head-quarters of the very important Committee on Internal Arrangements and Reception of Goods, and hence proceeded the "Vermillion Edicts" which energized the whole enterprise.

We now enter the lobby of the ground floor of the Academy. Just inside the door, we find an elegant soda-water fountain, set up by Mr. D. G. Farwell, druggist, of No. 17 Court street. This was provided at all times with the refreshing beverage, together with a variety of the choicest syrups, all, with the polite attendants, being freely contributed to the Fair. This fountain was first erected in Knickerbocker Hall, but the restaurant being closed at stated hours, it was removed to the lobby, where it could refresh the thirsty multitude at all times. A portion of the lobby was also devoted to the exhibition of Clothes-Wringers, a very large number of which, both of the "Putnam" and "Universal" variety were presented to the Fair. On the extreme right of the lobby was the department of glass-ware, where Messrs. Dorflinger & Co., of Greenpoint, exhibited many exquisite specimens of American manufacture, fully equal to the best imported. The lustrous flashing of the crystal wares was a beautiful sight. At the opposite extremity of the lobby, and completing its objects of interest, was the "Skating Pond." This very curious and beautiful exhibition was justly regarded as one of the most interesting things in the Fair. By the aid of mirrors, upon the principle of the kaleidoscope, a very striking optical illusion was presented, being apparently a field of ice, thousands of acres in extent, crowded with skaters in brilliant and picturesque costumes, all in rapid and graceful motion. This interesting toy was the invention of Mrs. Edward Anthony, who generously exhibited it for the benefit of the Fair.

We will now enter the great Sales-room, or Auditorium. At once a vision of splendor breaks on the eye, before which few fail to stand in mute admiration and amazement. We see, as in some gorgeous dream of fairy-land, a world of beautiful creations rising before us. Our eyes are dazzled with vivid colors, and our ears stunned with the clamor of thousands of tongues. It is night. A myriad of gas-lights pour floods of radiance on the wonderful scene. The vast room seems wainscoted and ceiled with rainbows. Glass and silver flash back the blaze in streams of iridescent light; silks and satins shimmer softly, brilliant colors shine everywhere—gold, and crimson, and green, and blue, and rose, and purple; perfumes of rarest flowers scent the air; a melody from the piano tinkles through the tumult like the piping of birds in the pauses of a storm, or a burst of sumptuous music from the powerful band rolls out of the balcony and charms the clamor to a breathless hush. Above, the colors of our Union hang their glorious folds; the blazing legend, “In Union there is Strength,” tells the story of the war in a word, while over all hovers the majestic eagle, fit emblem of a land which, while it aims to soar nearer to the sun of prosperity and power than any nation on earth, can yet sweep with unchecked wing and undaunted heart through the strongest storm that ever blew.

The departments in the interior of the Auditorium were disposed as follows: The tables immediately on the right were devoted to the worsted department. This was one of the most interesting, as it was naturally one of the most brilliant departments of the Fair. Here all the wonderful things that had ever been dreamed of before in the shape of worsted work were to be seen, together with many that it had not before entered into the imagination of any woman to conceive of. Sofa pillows, pin-cushions, mats, tidies, comforters, muffs, dolls, landscapes, hoods, nubias—but the line would stretch out “to the crack of doom." The richness, vividness, and variety of colors, of the thousand articles which heaped the tables, fluttered from the pillars, or glowed from the walls, gave one the impression of a bevy of rainbows playing hide-and-go-seek in the room. The irises of one's eyes for about five minutes after leaving this brilliant corner, resembled their ethereal prototype as well in their rich play of colors, as in name.

Then there were tables devoted to the sale of baskets, of all kinds, among which were great numbers of the most exquisite nursery baskets ever seen, any of them good enough to hold the outfit of an embryo Emperor of France, who is, after all, no better than any infantile red republican of American. Then there were tables for pin-cushions, and numberless were the styles and shapes; there were tables for bead-work, shell-work, infants' clothing, milliner's goods, etc., on this side the Academy. Table No. 25, under the charge of Messrs. Hart & Aise, was appropriated to the sale of silver-ware, and a tempting variety was displayed, the cool white glitter of which was most refreshing to the eyes after the bewildering experiences of the preceding tables. Tables 33 and 35 were covered with the most exquisite French imported fancy goods, and articles of vertu, in bronze, Parian ware, glass, etc. These goods were imported by the ladies of St. Ann's Church expressly for the Fair, being admitted free of duty by Secretary Chase, after some correspondence had passed between Mr. A. A. Low and the Department. The Managers of the Fair were much indebted for this remission of duties to the urgent solicitations of Hon. M. F. Odell, and Senator Morgan, whose services in this behalf were gratefully acknowledged by the Executive Committee. These goods realized $3,380 to the Fair.

We now come to the Post Office, which was a very interesting and successful department of the Fair. It was under the special care of Mrs. J. P. Duffin, assisted by Mrs. St. John, Mrs. Humphrey, Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Miss Hattie Gladwin, Miss Kate Hillard, and Mrs. and Miss Newbold.

Mrs. Newbold, and Mrs. Gordon L. Ford, each contributed a large number of letters, of their own composition, for the office.

The price of postage was 15 and 25 cents. A list of letters, carefully revised each day, was displayed outside the office. Many of the letters were in poetry, and not a few of a high order of merit.

The Post Office occupied the Proscenium Box, on the right of the stage.

Then came in order the Department allotted to Ladies', Gentlemen's, and Children's White Goods, located in the recess to the right of the stage. Here was exhibited all manner of articles in this line that ever were, or probably ever will be designed. The display included Children's suits of every fabric and style, woolen, worsted, silk and cotton, embroidered, braided or plain. There was an immense assortment of Ladies' under clothing, comprising outfits for the most fastidious, while the gentleman who could not here find a dressing-gown, pair of slippers, or smoking-cap to suit him, might as well abandon the search at once and forever. The walls at the back of these tables were hung to the ceiling with elegant carpets and rugs. The tables at the back of the stage were appropriated to the contributions of

THE TOWNS OF LONG ISLAND.

These responded most nobly, hardly a town in Kings, Queens, or Suffolk Counties failing to send in generous donations of money or goods, or both, in response to the appeals of the indefatigable Committees on Long Island, and Kings County Town Contributions. The following towns were represented in the Fair, by goods or cash, or both.

(For a more detailed acknowledgment of the contributions of the towns of Kings, Queens, and Suffolk, see Appendix.)

It will thus be seen that nearly every town on the Island sent its little rill, and many its copious stream of benefactions, to swell the rich tides which were to flow from this Fair into the Treasury of the Sanitary Commission. All honor and thanks to the noble and loyal men and women of Long Island.

The contributions from the above towns, as will be seen from the formal acknowledgment, were very largely in cash, but nevertheless enough goods were sent to supply the tables allotted to the towns of Long Island with a most brilliant variety, among which were some of the most elegant and tasteful of the fancy goods presented to the Fair.

We have now completed the tour of the right and rear of the Auditorium, and turn to the other side. As we leave the Long Island tables we find ourselves in front of a wall-tent, fitted with cots, etc., an exact copy of a field hospital tent of the U. S. Sanitary Commission. In the economy of space which the enormous affluence of contributions rendered necessary, this tent was put to excellent use for the sale of photographs of war scenes, and rings, and other articles of interest and curiosity manufactured by the soldiers, both Rebel and Union. It is here perhaps, as good a place as any to remark upon the interest taken in the success of the Fair by our gallant soldiers. From all quarters the managers of the Fair received evidences that the soldiers appreciated the labors of those who were building up this splendid tribute to their fidelity and patriotism, and many were the curious and valuable tokens sent to the Fair from hospital and field, for sale for the benefit of the cause. Not a few of these were of priceless value to their donors, from their associations; and their parting with them so freely, showed that from the bottom of their hearts they were grateful for the help which this Fair was intended to bestow upon them and their comrades. Most of these articles were offered for sale in the Sanitary Tent above alluded to, and it is a pleasant fact to chronicle that they were among the most eagerly sought of all the unique and valuable things with which the Fair abounded. The Soldier's Hospital in Burlington, Vt., contributed a box of charms, rings, crosses, and picture-frames, of curious material and design, enriched with patriotic mottoes, many of them relics of some of the most glorious battle-fields of the war, and every one with a history of its own. Of one of the rings sent, the soldier who made it, wrote, "This ring was worn in ten different engagements, being made by myself while on picket duty." From the hospital at Brattleboro, Vt., was received a box of picture-frames, of cone and leather work, and wood, some of which held photographs of their makers. The box also contained many rings, charms, etc. This invoice was exhausted very rapidly. From the Lowell General Hospital, Portsmouth Grove, R. I., was received a box, containing, among other very curious things, an elegantly carved bracket, with the following inscription: "Made by John Thatcher, U. S. Invalid Corps, out of wood from the house in Portsmouth, R. I., in which Gen. Prescott, of the British Army, was captured during the Revolutionary War." The De Camp General Hospital, on David's Island, also sent numerous and beautiful articles. Among other articles in the tent were photographic copies of several beautiful and spirited original drawings, by a private soldier named J. B. Geyzer, entitled, "Moses smiting the Rock in Horeb," "Hunting in old Virginia," "Bringing in Contrabands," and "Marching Orders." There was also on exhibition a "Soldier's Scrap-book," being a collection of war-verses, culled from various sources, and all copied in a neat hand-writing, with incredible pains and patience, by some unknown young lady patriot. The idea was conceived from a hint contained in a letter from a wounded soldier that such a book would cheer the tedium of hospital life. It was bound in quarto form. After the Fair it was sent to Chaplain Merwin, to make such disposition of as he should deem fit. This was justly regarded as one of the most touching of the labors of love which on every hand throughout the Fair bore testimony to the devotion, the patriotism, the deep and strong ardor for the Great Cause which burns in the hearts of the women of our land.

At the back of the Sanitary tent, a fine specimen of the Southern Palmetto stood, scowling truculently down upon it. As the visitor saw this emblem of the State in whose heart of treason was conceived this accursed Rebellion, mounting grim and thorny guard over the tent from which flew the flag of the Union, he could not help seeing in the eye of fancy many a real scene of which this was the faithful type, of tents standing afar off under the blazing Southern sky, beneath the palmettos, in which the soldiers of the Republic lie shattered by shot and shell, or stricken down by rebel bullets as they stood under the glorious Banner of the Stars. And he could not but thank God for the inspiration which gave birth to so grand a purpose as the United States Sanitary Commission, which, with the tender care of a father for his children, seeks out every one of those white tents, whether among the war-blasted fields of Virginia, the clouds of Lookout Peak, the distant everglades of Florida, or the thorny wilds of Texas, and makes them shine with the golden light of patriotic love. Few passed this tent, without breathing a benison, warm from the inner heart, upon THE UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION.

Passing the Sanitary Tent, we come to the entrance of the covered bridge leading to the Hall of Manufactures, and the New England Kitchen. Hard by this stands another elegant soda fountain, erected by Mr. H. H. Dickinson, druggist, corner of Atlantic and Henry streets. The beverage, with all kinds of delicious syrups, was furnished without cost to the Fair, as were also the services of the gentlemanly attendants. We have now reached the into which, day after day, as long as the Fair remained open, flowed the bounteous benefactions of the citizens of Brooklyn and Long Island. Here books were provided for the reception of cash donations, and every day, over the front of the office, in full view of all, was displayed a bulletin showing how the volume of receipts was rolling up. It was interesting to watch the successive steps which the tide reached, from the $10,000 pointed out as the receipts of the first night, to the $400,000 proudly displayed before the Fair closed. Mr. James H. Frothingham, the Treasurer of the Executive Committee, was assiduous in his attention to the arduous duties of his office. He received most efficient co-operation from Mr. S. H. Farnham, General Cashier, and Messrs. Valentine H. Seaman, of the Dime Saving's Bank, Edgar S. Jones and Edward Smith, of the Nassau Bank, of Brooklyn.

Next to the Treasurer's Office stood the tables allotted to wax-work, flowers, etc.; some of the most elegant and elaborate works of art of this description ever exhibited were here offered for sale, and at prices noticeably moderate. Indeed, it may here be said that the moderate prices of the goods was one of the peculiar features of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair. The principle adopted from the start was to ask no "fancy prices." Everything was marked quite as low, and in many cases very much lower than the article could be purchased in open market. It was considered better to sell the goods at even a low price than to keep them at a large one. Nevertheless, there was no disposition to sacrifice the stock, and, fortunately, no need of it. The principle aimed at was simply to charge a fair market price for everything.

But to return to the wax flowers. Some perfect triumphs of this beautiful art were shown. There were water-lilies startlingly natural in their superb and regal beauty. There were passion-flowers, that seemed to be exhaling from their purpled hearts a pure and fragrant grief and pity. Who can look upon the passion-flower without a melting heart, telling, as it does, the story of that awful night in Gethsemane, when the adorable Redeemer of the world, the Lord of glory, in his bitter agony sweat great drops, as it were blood? The superstition of an elder time saw folded among and pictured upon its petals the scourge, the crown of thorns, and the cruel and ignominious cross—the purified faith of this brighter age still deems it not an inappropriate symbol of the love and suffering of the Lamb who was slain on Calvary. On the table above noted was a fuller and more speaking illustration of the august symbolism so widely accepted, in a Cross, which a spray of passion-flowers tightly clasped, while their beautiful heads drooped low. Thus the tendrils of woman's love clasped the shameful tree, while her heart was bowed in unspeakable bitterness at its foot. Immortal constancy! Immortal grief!

On this side the Auditorium, also, were the stands of the dry-goods department, more of the horticultural tables, assortments of stationers' and druggists' fancy goods, combs, brushes, pocket-books, perfumery, soaps, etc., etc. On the left of the main entrance several stalls were appropriated to the Ladies' Fancy Goods Committee, under charge of Mrs. Henry Sheldon. On these tables a very large assortment of fancy goods of every possible variety, was exhibited. This department, presided over by Mrs. Sheldon and ladies of her Committee, was the largest in the Fair, and its receipts were of proportional magnitude. For the results of the labors of this efficient Committee, the reader is referred to the list of acknowledgments from them, printed in the Appendix.

THE SUPERINTENDENTS OF TABLES.

We give, so far as it has been possible to obtain them, the names of the ladies who had charge of the stalls.

Numbers 2 and 4 were appropriated to the churches of Messrs. Cuyler and Rockwell; 6, South Presbyterian Church; 8, Christ Church, Mrs. Shafter; 10, St. Paul's; 12 and 14, Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. McCoy, to the Associated Clinton avenue Churches; 38 and 40 were in charge of Mrs. Wempel and Mrs. Dominick; 42, Mrs. Jessop; 44, 46, 48, Mrs. I. The reader will bear in mind that the stands numbered "even" were on the left, and "odd" on the right.

The ladies having charge of the White Goods Department were Mesdames French, Jackson, Pomeroy, Sandford, Buckley, Fowler, Beach and Hutchinson; Mrs. Capwell and Mrs. Beach superintended the Toy Department, and Mrs. Silleck, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. Bartlett and Mrs. Moulton the Miscellaneous Department, opposite the tent. 73 and 75 were waited upon by Mrs. Justin Edwards, Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. Moses S. Beach, Mrs. J. B. Hutchinson, Mrs. J. Howard, Jr., and Mrs. John Hutchinson; 77 and 79 by Mrs. Pomeroy and Mrs. Sandford; 83, 85, 87, 89, (Flushing tables) by Mrs. Fuller and Mrs. Cox; 86, 88, 90, (Kings County tables) Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Leferts and others; 68, 70, 72, perfumery, soaps, etc., Mr. H. We have now completed the round of the Auditorium, and have but to notice the few objects of interest in the centre of the floor. Here, on a raised platform, was exhibited an elegant piano from Messrs. Steinway & Son, which was sold early in the Fair for $500, being speedily replaced by a superb instrument from Messrs. W. B. Bradbury, of New York, valued at $700. Upon this platform, also, was exhibited a superb cut glass epergne, three feet high, contributed by Gould & Hoare, glass cutters. This was sold to Mr. A. A. Low for $225. There were also, after the first day or two, several tables in this part of the hall to receive the overflow of the White Goods Department, the accommodations for which, heretofore noted, proved entirely inadequate. One of the interesting features of the Fair at this point was "The Old Woman that lived in a Shoe." She was impersonated by a succession of pretty little girls, who sat from four to six hours. The Old Woman was "got up" with mob cap and spectacles, and seated in a huge shoe, filled and overrunning with dolls of all sizes and descriptions, which found a ready sale. The ladies of one of the City Churches were responsible for this very successful and lucrative illustration of the old nursery rhyme. In this part of the Auditorium also stood one of the tables of the Horticultural Department, which was kept constantly supplied with the choicest flowers by our professional and amateur florists.

We now leave the lower floor of the Academy, and make our way to or "Dress Circle." This from below presented a spectacle of wonderful brilliancy, completely tapestried as it was with afghans, quilts, and spreads, of the most vivid colors. The first four tiers of seats here, were left in their places for the accommodation of visitors, and from no point of view could a better coup d'œil of the bewildering scene below be obtained. These seats were crowded at all times, as well as those in the tier above, which last was not occupied for the sale of goods. The Dress Circle was divided into five compartments of about two hundred and fifty square feet each. Here were sold afghans, quilts, etageres, screens, fancy chairs, chess tables, desks, camp-stools, toys, and hundreds of other articles of a miscellaneous character. The tables to the right of the central entrance to this gallery were occupied by the young ladies of the Packer Institute, who exhibited a great variety of fancy articles, valued at nearly $1,000. Among the young ladies in attendance at these tables were Misses Wright, E. J. Brown, E. W. Brown, Waterbury, Thompson, Thalheimer, Winslow, Hathaway, Hedden, Gallagher, Wells, and Harrison. The stalls in this gallery were under the charge of Messrs. Thomas Brooks and S. W. Smith.

DEPARTMENT OF BOOKS, PUBLICATIONS, ETC.

The lobby of the second floor was devoted to one of the most interesting departments of the Fair, namely, that for the sale of Books, Photographic Albums, etc. This department, through the generous liberality of the publishers of Brooklyn and New York, was kept stocked with as large and choice a variety of goods in the line of Books and Stationery as any first-class book store, and quiet as was the nook in which it was situated, it was at all times thronged with appreciative purchasers. Among the elegant Albums offered for sale, was one holding not less than 800 pictures, and valued at sixty dollars. The publishers of Webster's Quarto Pictorial Dictionary sent twenty-five copies of that valuable standard work. Another elegant Dictionary was a copy of Worcester's Quarto, bound in Russia leather, and valued at $12; Darley's Illustrations of Margaret, in Turkey Morocco, and another in antique, were among the books. Then there were the "Dusseldorff Gallery" in Turkey Morocco, full-gilt binding, $40; the New York Gallery of Pictures, $40; seven volumes of Harper's Illustrated Weekly, half Morocco, $40; Harper's Pictorial Family Bible, $25; Appleton's Encyclopædia, 16 volumes, in Sheep, $64, and another set, half Morocco, for $80; Johnson's Universal Atlas, $25; Ure's Dictionary, Appleton's Dictionary of Mechanics, Irving's Washington, Life of Henry Clay, Robinson's Songs of the Church, British Essayist, Spectator, and hundreds of other choice and standard works, besides an infinite variety of smaller miscellaneous books. In this department was exhibited a manuscript speech of Hon. Edward Everett, delivered at Faneuil Hall, Boston, Feb. 10, 1864, in introducing Col. N. G. Taylor, of East Tennessee, who came to plead with the true men of the East in behalf of the war-scourged loyalists of that region, faithful unto death.

A very pleasant and noticeable feature of the business of this department, was the demand for substantial, valuable books, and religious books were also much inquired for. During the last three days of the Fair, in response to an appeal for "reading matter" from Beaufort, S. C., in behalf of the wounded men just from Florida, a placard was hung up in the Book-room, addressed to the public: "Buy a book and leave it to be sent to the Hospital Library, Beaufort, S. C."

A member of the Book Committee writes:

"This card was read by many who gladly responded to the appeal. Three young soldiers were among the first of these. They each purchased a volume, wrote their name and regiment, and smilingly presented the gifts, while one said with an earnestness that brought the color to his cheek: 'You are doing a good work here ladies.' Another donation to this object came from a young lady shut up within her sick room. She heard of the opportunity, and, through a friend, selected 'The Autobiography of Dr. Lyman Beecher,' to go in her name to some weary invalid lying on his bed in a Southern hospital. As the result of this plan, over 150 volumes were received for Beaufort, which are already on their way, while a direct gift was made by the Committee, at the close of the Fair, of two packages of books for David's Island and Hart's Island."

On Tuesday evening, March 8th, the night of the formal closing of the Fair, an auction sale was held in the Book Room, of all the articles undisposed of. Mr. Leavitt, auctioneer of the Book Trade's Sales, of New York, officiated in a happy manner. There was not much left of value, but what there was went off briskly, at satisfactory prices.

In the third circle, as before stated, there were no stalls. There was, however, a scale, under charge of Mr. and Mrs. Schoonmaker, on which thousands tested their weight, in strolling through the upper regions.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS IN THE AUDITORIUM.

The main business in the Grand Bazaar being to dispose of the goods for sale, of course no great variety of incident could be expected to take place there. No time whatever was lost in irrelevant proceedings. There were no speeches or glorifications of any sort, men and women, managers and managed, bent their entire thoughts and energies from the opening hour to the closing, to the securing as large a sum as possible for the great Cause. Amusement was provided for in other departments of the Fair, but here, all was serious, systematic business. To be sure, the visitor might wander delightfully for hours together among the various attractions presented by the Brzaar, and nowhere could more real enjoyment be obtained than here, but there was on the part of all interested a faithful and rigid attention to duty which told effectively when the results were figured up. Indeed the business men and women who gave their time to the Fair, without exception devoted themselves to it with far greater faithfulness than they are accustomed to bestow upon the details of their customary business affairs. Many, during the progress of the Fair, gave their entire time to it, and all gave a very large proportion. It would be impossible to individualize all who distinguished themselves for unremitting labor, and untiring energy. They have their reward in the approval of their own consciences, which is but the approving voice of God.

But rare as were the incidents of extraordinary interest which occurred in the Auditorium, there were a few events of a pleasing character, during the progress of the Fair, of which it is proper to preserve a record here. The music, which was furnished every evening from the Dress Circle, the first four nights by Dodworth's celebrated brass and reed band, of thirty pieces, and during the remainder of the Fair by the band of the U. S. receiving ship North Carolina, was an ever charming feature. The programme of the opening night, which is here appended, will give an idea of the gems to which the visitors to the Fair were treated. Of course there was a change in the programme every night.

On the afternoon of Thursday, March 3, a pleasing incident occurred. Ten little girls, whose ages are between ten and twelve years, who had been holding a Fair of their own in South Brooklyn (see reports of entertainments auxiliary to the Fair, in Appendix,) visited the Academy together, to present the proceeds, amounting to $164. Of this little episode, the Union, of March 4, says :

"Mr. Stranahan introduced them to the audience with a few pleasant and pertinent remarks, stating that they, determined to do what they could for the Fair, made a quantity of small articles for it, which they sold, and thus netted the neat sum we have mentioned. Those within hearing loudly applauded the earnest little workers, and those at a distance, nothing doubting that the applause was for something meriting it, took up the echo until the great Academy rang again."

SWORD PRESENTATION.

One of the most interesting incidents of the Fair took place in the rooms of the Executive Committee on Monday evening, March 1, where a number of ladies and gentlemen assembled for the purpose of presenting a sword, sash, and belt, to Lient. Col. J. Harris Hooper, of the 15th Mass. Volunteers, who recently escaped, with some brother officers, from the Libby Prison at Richmond. These equipments were purchased by a few of his friends and admirers, from a collection given to the Fair by the house of Messrs. Miller & Co. of 9 Maiden Lane, New York. The friends of Col. Hooper in this city heard in the morning of his safe arrival in Brooklyn, and of his presence at the Fair, and in a very brief space of time the subscription was complete. At 9 o'clock, James H. Frothingham, Esq., the Treasurer, and a personal friend of Col. Hooper, introduced him to the company gathered before him; after which A. A. Low, Esq., President of the General Committee, made the presentation in a neat address.

Mr. Low's remarks were received with warm applause, and expressions of profound interest in the young hero. Colonel Hooper, taken wholly by surprise, responded in a few graceful and modest words, fresh from a noble heart. At the suggestion of Mr. Low, he afterwards gave a thrilling account of the manner and incidents of his escape, and of the generous and careful spirit in which the negroes they encountered gave guidance and aid to himself and companions. At the close of his narrative, Col. Woodward, of the Brooklyn 13th, one of his comrades in his first campaign, proposed "three cheers for Col. Hooper," which were given with a will; and amid general congratulations to him, the meeting dissolved.

The evening the Fair was formally closed, Tuesday, March 8th, an interesting scene took place in the Auditorium. Not long before the hour of closing the Treasurer hung out his last bulletin, announcing to the noble people of Brooklyn and Long Island that their generous benefactions in behalf of the United States Sanitary Commission had reached the magnificent sum of being nearly twice as much as the most sanguine had ventured to hope for. This proud announcement was greeted with the liveliest sensation by the multitude which packed the Academy. At a few minutes before ten o'clock, Mr. A. A. Low, Chairman of the General Committee, mounted an improvised rostrum in the centre of the floor, and begged the attention of all present. Mr. Low, then in a few well-chosen remarks stated the general results of the Fair, and proposed that the great "broom" which the managers of the Cincinnati Fair had sent us, challenging us to beat the $240,000 which they had swept up, be sent to the New York Fair with our $400,000 attached. The proposition was adopted by acclamation.

Rev. Dr. Farley then being called upon, said that as this great enterprise was now closing, he could think of nothing more appropriate than to request the band to play the "Star Spangled Banner," and he would beg the audience to join in the chorus. He also would request the band to play the more homely, but stirring music of "Yankee Doodle."

Loud applause followed this request, which was responded to by the band, who played in their best style the grand national hymn, in which the audience joined their voices. "Yankee Doodle" followed, to the lively strains of which the assemblage retired.

THE END OF THE FAIR—THE AUCTION SALE.

It was announced that all the goods remaining unsold at the close of the Fair would be disposed of at auction. The number was much less than was expected, not more than two or three thousand dollars worth being left on hand in the Auditorium, while the Museum and Hall of Manufacturers were also pretty thoroughly cleaned out. On Wednesday evening, March 9th, the auction was held, commencing with the unsold goods in the Auditorium. Those in the Book Department had been sold the previous night.

It should be premised that most of the purchasers of the choicest goods very kindly consented to allow them to remain until the close of the Fair, so that the spectacle presented to the visitor on the last days of the Fair was nearly as brilliant as it was at the opening, as the abundant supplies that kept coming in, enabled the ladies to replenish the stalls with the smaller articles and fancy goods, and to keep their attractions from flagging. After the formal close of the Fair on Wednesday night, the work of removal commenced, and in a very few hours the splendors which had made the Academy of Music seem a veritable fairy palace, full

"Of jewels rare, and carved and gilded things More lovely than a dream's imaginings," were scattered in ten thousand homes, to remain as mementoes of the great Brooklyn and Long Island Fair, and the Academy was left looking, in its blank spaces, and bare walls, doubly desolate from the bright contrast of a few hours before.

The goods for auction were arranged on a few tables in the stage portion of the building. Mr. Joseph Hegeman, of corner of Willoughby and Pearl streets, commenced the sale, assisted by Mr. E. Sintzenich, of the firm of Ives & Co. The skill of these two gentlemen, aided by their ready wit, very soon disposed of the stock, which consisted of shaving soaps, stationery, perfumery, and toilet articles, combs, jewelry, wax-work, thread, sewing-silk, toys, Japanese and Chinese engravings, rebel trophies, relics of antiquity, Japanese opium pipes, canes, coins, pictures, vases, photographs, fans, autographs, autumn leaves, engravings, etc., etc. Several of the pictures in the Art Gallery were sold at prices very much below their value.

An assorted lot of plain photographs, some three hundred in number, went off for $10.

At 9 o'clock, the hour for selling the house and lot No. 540 Atlantic street, donated by Messrs. Scranton & Co. to the Fair, Mr. Sintzenich made his way through the crowd to the central stand. He announced the terms of sale to be, "Ten per cent. to be paid at once; the rest at the office of C. & S. Condit, on or before the 30th of March—the purchaser to sign a memorandum of the sale at the time of its purchase; full warranty deed to be executed, with exception of the mortgage of $2,600, on which interest was paid to date."

These terms being generally understood the sale was started by a bid at $3,000, which rapidly ran up, by hundred dollar bids, to $3,300. Then the bids ran up to $3,325, $3,350, $3,400, $3,450, $3,500, $3,550, $3,650. Here a competition arose between two persons on opposite sides of the stand, and the auctioneer became brilliant in his appeals to the one "not to be bluffed down," and the other "not to allow the property to be sacrificed to his adversary," each appeal bringing out a $50 bid, and the hearty applause of the now excited audience, until finally bidding ceased, and the property was knocked down to W. R. Tice, of No. 297 Fulton street, for the sum of $3,850.

In the meantime Mr. Hill had been selling off the stock of the Manufacturers Department, which was all, however, composed of small articles.

The buildings and lumber which had been used for the Fair were sold at auction on Friday, March 18th, for $1,487 50.

THE ART GALLERY

AS located in the Assembly Room of the Academy, the entrance being from the lobby of the second floor, and on either side the Book Department, and was one of the most charming departments of the Fair. The Committee on Art comprised some of the most eminent artists in the country, residents of Brooklyn, and most indefatigably did they labor, one and all, to offer an exhibition of Works of Art which should be second to none ever seen before in this country. And they succeeded. It was the opinion of connoisseurs that the Art Gallery of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair contained more works of real merit than any which had been offered to the public for many years. The most valuable picture in the collection was the original full-length portrait of Washington, by Stuart. This magnificent painting is the property of H. E. Pierrepont, Esq., of Brooklyn, and is valued at ten thousand dollars. Another painting by Stuart—Mrs. General Lee, was also exhibited. An examination of the catalogue, herewith presented, will convince the reader that the praise awarded to this collection is entirely merited.

THE ART ASSOCIATION RECEPTION.

The Gallery of Paintings was opened to the public on Wednesday evening, March 17th, several days in advance of the opening of the Fair, a brilliant reception and Promenade Concert being given by the Committee in charge. The price of tickets was placed at one dollar, and it being the inauguration of the Fair proper, the opening of the first of the departments directly involved in the scope of the enterprise, it was looked forward to with considerable anxiety. This was to be, as it were, the feeling of the public pulse. It was to test whether the blood was creeping coldly and sluggishly, or leaping with generous ardor and excited anticipation. The success of the Reception resolved all doubts. Notwithstanding the high price of tickets, not much less than two thousand persons attended, the stream flowing uninterruptedly from seven o'clock to eleven. The Auditorium had been floored over level with the stage, in anticipation of the Fair, and a large space was thus afforded in the beautiful Academy for the promenaders, who moved to the bewitching strains of Dodworth's great band. It was a scene of rare loveliness. Youth and beauty, light and fragrance, the rich music of the band, and the sweeter melodies of laughing girls, the great Art Gallery flooded with a splendor which brought out the bright colors with which its walls were spread with almost startling vividness, and pervading all a sweet anticipatory sense of delights yet to come, of which this was but the faint foretaste—the sparkle of the foam of the rich wine yet hidden, and more than all the assurance which all those earnest workers now felt of the entire success of the great enterprise which had been their waking thought and nightly dream for so many laborious weeks—all these combined to make the Artist's Reception one of those rare events the remembrance of which, to all who participated will be

THE ARTIST'S ALBUM.

One of the attractions of the Art Gallery was an Album of Sketches in Oil. This collection numbered one hundred and twenty pictures, by the following eminent artists :

Atwater, G. A. Baker, Brevoort, Crouch, Colman, Mrs. Edwards, Folconer, G. H. Hall, Hunt, Johnson, Kittell, Lentze, McEntee, McEwan, R. W. Miller, O'Brien, Parsons, Ruggles, Warren, Waterman, Beckwith, Bellow, Miss Bridges Carlin, Church, Callum, Durand, E. W. Hall, Wm. Hart, Hazeltine, Hicks, LaFarge, A. S. Miller, Ogilvie, Rondell, Ryder, Tait, White, Wier, C. Baker, W. H. Beard, J. H. Beard, Miss Beers, Craig, Cropsey, Grentorex, DeHass, J. M. Hart, Lang, Loop, Mathews, A. J. Miller, Moran, Oertel, Robbins, Rossiter, Shattuck, Winner, Barrow, Blanvelt, Casilear, Carter, Falconer, Gignoux, Griswold, Hennesey, Herrick, Hubbard, Lambdin, L. J. Miller, Mullen, Parker, Snyder, Sontag, Sommer, Wagner, Wood, Brandt, Burt, Boutelle, J.G. Brown, Brownell, Faehsel, Gifford, Guy, Happel, Inman, Kensett, LeClear, Lossing, Owen, Parton, Smillie, Stone, Thorpe, Whittaker, Ward, Annable, Antiselle, Bellows, Benson, Bierstadt, Bristol, H. K. Brown, Carmiencke, Darley, Daniels, Fish, Gray, Hill, Hooper, Huntington, Henry, Kuntze, Lumley, Nichols, Nelson.

This superb collection of sketches was the fruit of a suggestion of Mr. R. Gignoux, the well-known Artist, of Brooklyn, and the project was early taken in hand by the Sub-Committee on Reception and Exhibition of Works of Art, greatly aided by Geo. S. Stephenson, Esq., who contributed an elegant carved walnut portfolio table for the reception of the sketches.

A circular to Artists was sent out as early as Jan. 18th, by the Committee on Reception and Exhibition of Works of Art, which said :

"As an effective means of aiding this cause, the Committee will form a collection of sketches; and a work from your hand is respectfully solicited. No uniformity either as to size or manner of execution is required, but we would suggest that they do not exceed 8x10 inches—an average of 6x8 would probably suit all conditions. They will be mounted with large margin, in separate and protective "passe-partouts," and will be contained in an elegant carved case and stand of black-walnut.

The FAIR will open on FEBRUARY 22d, but as it will take considerable time to mount them, the sketches should be sent (or notice when ready) at as early a day as possible to either of the Committee.

REGIS GIGNOUX, Chairman.....	15 Tenth st., New York.
R. W. HUBBARD,.....	15 Tenth st., New York.
JOHN WILLIAMSON,.....	137 Montague st., Brooklyn.
N. B. KITTELL,.....	204 Fifth av., New York.
J. A. PARKER, JR.,.....	137 Montagne st., Brooklyn.
HENRY WARD BEECHER,.....	82 Columbia st., Brooklyn.
SAMUEL P. AVERY, Secretary,.....	102 Nassau st., New York."

How well this Committee performed their work is sufficiently attested by the results. The people of Brooklyn and Long Island owe a great debt of gratitude to the gentlemen concerned for their efforts in securing for the Fair this charming collection, which added so handsomely to the proceeds of the enterprise. To the artists who so generously contributed their works, they also owe their warmest appreciation and thanks.

About forty of these sketches were exhibited on the walls of the Art Gallery. The collection was disposed of in shares of ten dollars each, over five hundred being sold; the agreement among the shareholders being to meet after the Fair and dispose of the collection by a vote of the majority. This meeting was held in the Academy of Music on Thursday evening, March 17th. The pictures were divided into six collections of twenty each, and each was disposed of by lot, the box and stand making a seventh prize. The following were the fortunate drawers:

First—A, No. 196—H. G. Ward, 93 Wall street.

Second—B, No. 30—Mrs. C. A. Clark, South Brooklyn.

Third—C, No. 449—W. J. Steele, corner of Clinton and Gates avenue.

Fourth—D, No. 357—Thos. H. Sanford, 50 South street, New York.

Fifth—E, No. 467—L. Thompson, Baltimore.

Sixth—F, No. 386—Mrs. R. S. Bussing, 93 Montague street.

Seventh—(The case)—G, No. 391—Isaac Young, corner of Atlantic and Powers streets.

THE AMATEUR ARTISTS' ALBUM.

This collection of sketches, by Amateur Artists, was an exceedingly interesting and valuable contribution to the Fair. It numbered fifty-eight pictures, in oils, water-colors, and pencil, with one exquisite pen and ink sketch, by Professor Herzberg, of the Polytechnic Institute. The sketches were mostly by ladies and gentlemen of Brooklyn, although some came from New England, and one from New Jersey. One lady, seventy years of age, contributed some very pretty water-colors, which she painted expressly for the Album. They were studies from nature, and among the finest in the Album. There were also several exquisite heads, both in oil and water colors, all originals, by ladies of Brooklyn. There were also in the collection some beautiful autumn leaves, in water-colors. Mr. Burt, and Mr. Falconer, the eminent artists, each sent a sketch in oil, which were placed in the Amateur Album. Mrs. S. B. Chittenden, Chairman of the Ladies' Art Committee, conceived and carried out the happy idea of this Album. The sketches sent in she had mounted at Goupil's, who also made a very handsomely carved box-table, of black walnut, to contain the pictures. In addition to the sketches in the Album, Gignoux and Huntington each presented to Mrs. Chittenden, for the Fair, a painting in oil, which sold separately for $100 each.

The following are the names of the ladies and gentlemen who contributed to the Amateur Artists' Album, so far as they can be obtained :

Miss Kate Dana, Miss Eliza Ripley, by a Friend of Miss Dana, Mr. Jale, by a Friend of Mr. Jale, Mrs. Rossire, Miss Julia Sand, Mr. Max Sand, Mr. Charles Farley, Miss Lyman, Mrs. Newbold, Mrs. Dr. Littlejohn, Miss Dodge, Mrs. Beecher, Miss Beach, Professor Herzberg, Miss Ellen Robbins, Miss Helen Prentiss, Mr. Frank Vinton, Miss Kate Hillard, Miss Alice Cary, Miss Kate Ripley, Miss Mary Stranahan, Miss Kate Taylor, Miss A. W. Henshaw, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Fowler, Miss Ward, Miss Cornelia Olcott, Mrs. Fox, Mr. Fay, by a Friend of Miss Olcott, Miss Millard, Mr. Ludovici, Mr. McCullum, Miss Porter, Mr. Burt, Mr. Van Nostrand, Miss Van Nostrand, Miss Emma Wallace.

The Album was disposed of in shares, one hundred being sold at $5 each, thus realizing the handsome sum of $500. This Album was at first exhibited in the Art Gallery, but was afterwards removed to the Museum building. The final disposition took place on Monday evening, April 4th, in the Director's Room of the Academy. Fifty-eight sketches were by agreement divided into three lots, which were drawn for in the same manner as the Artists' Album. The first choice for eighteen pictures, and the handsome table was drawn by Mr. J. T. Howard. The second choice for twenty sketches was obtained by Mr. E. S. Mills, and the third and last lot by Mrs. J. C. Brevoort.

KNICKERBOCKER HALL.

THE History of Knickerbocker Hall, the refreshment department of the Fair, is a striking example of what energy and perseverance can do in the accomplishment of a task that might well be deemed an impossibility. The Committee charged with the duty of providing accommodations for the refreshment of the visitors, had they foreseen to what a gigantic scale the undertaking was to reach, might well have shrunk from the attempt. As it was, and not anticipating having to provide for a fourth part of the number they afterwards did successfully for two weeks, it is no impugnement of their courage or resolution to say that they approached their duty with many misgivings. It was reported, and with much truth, that the restaurants of most of the Fairs previously held had proved failures, and this was a fact not calculated to encourage them. But it is rarely that such a task has been entrusted to abler hands. The spirit of determination to conquer difficulties, and to win success at all hazards and cost, which was the ruling spirit of the whole Fair, nowhere was so necessary, or, fortunately, so fully developed and ardent as among the managers of the Refreshment Department, both ladies and gentlemen, and so it came to pass, that, having expected to feed a comparatively few persons every day, and finding instead that their doors were besieged by a voracious multitude, their determination rose with the occasion, and, after the guage of the work had been taken, which was done the very first day, no man went hungry from Knickerbocker Hall.

The Executive Committee were very naturally puzzled when they undertook to estimate the amount of room required for the Fair, as they did not know how many goods would be sent in, nor how large a concourse of people would need accommodation. A great diversity of views prevailed, some members of the Committee believing that the Academy of Music alone, would furnish accommodation sufficient for all the departments. Fortunately the majority of the Committee thought it would be better to err, if at all, on the safe side, and provide liberally. The result showed that this confidence in the large-heartedness of the people of Long Island was not over sanguine. The Committee seem to have calculated just right. There was room enough in all the departments, and it is not possible to see how any could have been accommodated in less space.

Knickerbocker Hall was one of the temporary buildings erected for the occasion. It was located on the lot adjoining the Academy of Music, on the West. The lot is the property of A. A. Low, Esq., Chairman of the General Committee, and was generously loaned for the use of the Fair. Ground was broken on Saturday, Jan. 23d, for a building 68 by 100 feet, and two stories in height. So vigorously was the work pushed, that, by the ensuing Saturday, the building was entirely enclosed. It was completed in ample time for the opening of the Fair on Feb. 22.

THE HALL WHEN COMPLETED.

The entrance to Knickerbocker Hall was from the lobby of the Academy of Music. At the door, gates were provided, opening in opposite directions, so as to keep the streams of ingress and egress divided. This ingenious arrangement prevented all confusion. Upon entering the door, the visitor found himself in a beautiful salle a manger fitted with tables, and all the appliances of a first-class dining-saloon.

The Restaurant was arranged as follows: On the right, on entering, was located the Confectionery Department, where waited a large number of beautiful girls, dressed in a uniform, of which the most striking feature was its patriotic trimming of red, white and blue. At this table every variety of sugar wares were to be found, and at very moderate prices. This source yielded an average of about $200 per day. In the centre of the room stood the cake tables, covered with productions of that description, which were perfect marvels of size and ornamentation. The central cake was adorned with a Temple of Liberty, in white sugar, not less than five feet high. In niches on the edges stood equestrian figures of Gens. Grant, McClellan, Fremont and Sigel. The likenesses were well preserved, and the action of the figures wonderfully striking and natural. The temple was surmounted by a figure of the Goddess of Liberty bearing the American flag. This gigantic cake was the most striking feature of the room, and arrested the attention of every visitor at once. It was made and presented to the Fair by Mr Robert G Anderson, of corner of Fulton and Clinton streets.

THE MAIZENA DEPARTMENT.

This interesting department occupied the north-western corner of the hall. It was under the personal supervision of Mr. W. H. Duryea, of the firm of Duryea & Co., 166 Fulton street, New York. This firm in the most generous manner furnished gratuitously all the Maizena required by the Fair, which, after the public became acquainted with the variety and delicacy of the dishes made from it, was a quantity something enormous. They also had the Maizena prepared, and furnished attendants without charge. Great as must have been the outlay of the Messrs. Duryea, in thus sustaining, at their own expense, a complete eating department of the Fair, it cannot but bring, as all good deeds do, its own reward, even in a pecuniary sense, for it introduced to wide public notice and created a taste for the delicious article which they prepare, which cannot fail to result in largely increased sales. Properly, Glen Cove should be credited with the above magnificent contribution of the Messrs. Duryea, as their Maizena mills are there located.

The western side of Knickerbocker Hall, as well as the gallery which ran around it on three sides, were occupied by the tables. Of these there were thirty on the lower floor, and forty-five in the gallery. On the southern side of the Hall were rooms for the accommodation of private parties, containing tables at which thirty could dine with comfort. Adjoining these were rooms for the carvers, and the cooking room of the Maizena department. At the left of the entrance lunch tables were kept constantly spread with choice viands, such as cold fowl, chicken and lobster-salads, tongue, ham, etc., at which persons could lunch without ordering from the bill of fare.

Having now given a general idea of the arrangement of the Restaurant, it is proper that the adornments of the Hall should be noted. The building being a temporary structure, of course great elaboration of ornamentation was required to cover its rude walls, and make it attractive. Never was there a greater triumph of the decorative art than was achieved in Knickerbocker Hall. It was a perfect miracle of transformation, and marvel of beauty. The walls were covered with evergreens, woven into stars, twined about the columns, festooned from the galleries, springing in arches to the very ceiling. In looking up at the mass of greenery which canopied the room, one might well imagine himself walking through the fragrant aisles of a forest of evergreens. Over the door on Montague street was a tasteful combination of flags, with evergreens. At the southern end of the building a fine portrait of Washington was hung, surrounded with flags and evergreens. The ground floor was encircled with arches, interspersed with shields, bearing the coats of arms of the States; these shields were also draped with flags. Indeed, a profusion of flags and patriotic emblems was everywhere. The walls were paneled with handsome mirrors. Over the cake table, in the centre of the room, was suspended a gigantic chandelier, burning two hundred lights. This was also elegantly draped with evergreens.

The Bill of Fare never lacked variety nor excellence. A member of the Committee furnished the following as an approximation to the amount of food consumed in a day: Besides Maizena, 100 turkeys and chickens, 100 grouse, quail, and ducks, 500 lbs. of beef, mutton and venison, 20 hams and tongues, 18,000 oysters, 15 lbs. trout, 20 lbs. smelts and other fish; cake, pies, 60 or 70 qts. jelly, 800 qts. ice cream, 250 gallons coffee and tea, 400 loaves bread, 3 bbls. crackers, 200 heads celery, 3 bbls. potatoes, besides sugar, butter, eggs, milk, flour, apples, oranges, pickles, preserves, etc. The articles of food contributed were enough to supply seven-eighths of the demand. If this is not weighty testimony to the rare generosity of the people of Long Island, we should like to know what would be.

The arrangement for receiving provisions was as follows: It was announced in the papers beforehand that on certain days the contributions of certain Churches would be received—six on each day, between the hours of eight and eleven. Between these hours the procession of messengers bearing meats, poultry, cakes, confectionery, jellies, pastry, vegetables, etc., etc., began, each article being duly credited as it was brought in. If there was a surplus of any sort of provisions, as there was sometimes of hams, tongues, and other things, the Committee would exchange them with dealers for other articles more needed. The following was the designated order for contributions from Churches:

MONDAY, 22D—Church of the Pilgrims, Church of the Messiah, South Second Methodist, E. D., New England Congregational, E. D., St. Mark's Church, E. D., Contributions by Mrs. J. Hall.

THURSDAY, March 3d—Clinton Street Congregational, Westminster Church, North Dutch Church, Third Presbyterian, Moravian Church, Hanson Place Methodist.

Only a portion of the food consumed was provided through the Churches. The Gentlemen's Committee took upon themselves the furnishing of meats, oysters, fish, bread, crackers, vegetables, coffee, tea, and ice cream. The Ladies' Committee was responsible for turkeys and chickens, hams, tongues, pies, cake, jelly, fruit, etc. The sugar, butter, flour, milk, eggs, and numerous other articles which were used, were partly purchased and partly contributed.

The kitchen and store-rooms of Knickerbocker Hall were in the basement of the Academy of Music.

Five hundred persons could be comfortably accommodated at one time in Knickerbocker Hall.

The arrangements for receiving money were admirable. Mr. E. H. Close, the Cashier, of whose gentlemanly deportment and assiduous devotion to business there was but one opinion, was seated at a desk about in the centre of the room. Every four tables were presided over by a lady, who took up the checks furnished by the waiters, and received the money, paying it over at once to the Cashier. By this plan it is thought the losses from dishonesty were reduced to the smallest possible amount, and probably no such losses occurred.

Of the corps of colored waiters, and their accomplished and indefatigable chef, Charles Robinson, a word of warm commendation must be said. The waiters at first employed were mostly foreigners, but they were a failure. With them confusion and stupidity reigned supreme. With the advent of Robinson and his skilful compeers came order, neatness, civility, and promptitude. Never was the superiority of the black over the white as waiters more conclusively demonstrated than it was in the experience of Knickerbocker Hall.

The restaurant closed on Saturday night, March 5th, having netted to the Fair the splendid sum of nearly twenty-four thousand dollars.

For this result the public are greatly indebted to the able, judicious, and energetic management of Mr. E. J. Lowber, Chairman of the Gentlemen's, and Mrs. E. S. Mills, Chairman of the Ladies' Refreshment Committee. Honorable mention must likewise be made of Mr. William A. Husted, (Mr. Lowber's right hand man, and general purveyor of the Hall.) Mr. Rufus Crook, (whose experience as a restaurateur made his services of inestimable value, and who devoted his entire time to the work.) Mr. Robert G. Anderson, (a host in himself,) Mr. William S. Dunham, Chas. B. Loomis, and William S. Thompson. To Messrs. Robbins and Dorlan, for generous contributions of game and oysters, the warmest thanks of the community are due.

Of the ladies, in addition to Mrs. Mills, must be mentioned Mesdames A. B. Hall, Secretary and Treasurer, Emma Barnes, H. Waters, T. T. Buckley, H. Marchant, R. P. Buck, J. C. Hurlbut, F. H. Trowbridge, Geo. Thrall, H. W. Law, N. E. Smith, J. D. Cocks, F. E. Taylor, Joseph Greenwood, P. Waters, Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Beers, and Miss S. A. Russell.

THE NEW ENGLAND KITCHEN.

T was a most happy conception to reproduce at the Fair the old New England Kitchen, and faithfully was it carried out, to the unbounded mirth of the visitors, as well as to the great pecuniary profit of the Treasury. This was the funny feature of the Fair, and funny enough it was. The history of the New England Kitchen is as follows:

Early last fall a number of ladies of Brooklyn organized an association called the Sanitary Aid Society, the object being to work for the soldiers. At one of the meetings of this society, the subject of a Sanitary Fair was discussed. This was before any of the great Fairs had taken place.

It is singular to note that in several different quarters in Brooklyn this idea of a Grand Soldier's Fair was suggested before any steps of the kind had been taken elsewhere. When the ladies of the "Sanitary Aid" heard that a Fair had been resolved upon, they of course, abandoned their own project, and at once prepared to co-operate with the general movement. The plan of a New England Kitchen was broached, by Mrs. Ray Potter, President of the Sanitary Aid Society, and adopted with enthusiasm, and when the Committees of the Fair were appointed, a Special Committee was selected to take charge of the "New England Kitchen," comprising among its members the ladies and gentlemen who originated the plan. This committee took hold of the work con amore, their New England blood fired with the determination to make the “Kitchen” a grand success, and to give to the particular project in hand a stamp of individuality and uniqueness which should render it at least as conspicuous as any department of the Fair.

The following extract from a Circular issued by the Committee, will explain the nature and scope of the project :

“The idea is to present a faithful picture of New England farm-house life of the last century. The grand old fire-place shall glow again—the spinning-wheel shall whirl as of old—the walls shall be garnished with the products of the forest and the field—the quilting, the donation, and the wedding party shall assemble once more, while the apple-paring shall not be forgotten—and the dinner-table, always set, shall be loaded with substantial New England cheer. We shall try to reproduce the manners, customs, dress, and if possible, the idiom of the time ; in short, to illustrate the domestic life and habits of the people, to whose determined courage, sustained by their faith in God, we owe that government, so dear to every loyal heart. The period fixed upon is just prior to the throwing overboard of the tea in Boston Harbor.”

It was originally contemplated to allow the projectors of the New England Kitchen a room in the rear of Knickerbocker Hall, 25x50 feet, which it was supposed would be ample for all its requirements. But this contracted space by no means accorded with the bold and sanguine views of the New Englanders, and they labored earnestly for the allotment of a larger space. It was finally agreed that, if the “Kitchen” Committee would guarantee a cash contribution of $1,200, to cover the additional expense, a larger building would be erected, giving them a space 40x100 feet. This amount was at once pledged, and the New England Kitchen was located under the same roof with the Hall of Manufactures, on the North side of Montague street, and opposite the Academy of Music. There was an entrance from Montague street, and also through the Hall of Manufactures, which communicated with the Grand Bazaar by the covered bridge heretofore mentioned. The main Kitchen, was 40x75 feet. The cooking-room, pantry, store-rooms and dressing-rooms occupied smaller apartments in the rear.

THE QUAINI FURNITURE AND APPOINTMENTS.

In this large room all the furniture and appointments were, as nearly as it was possible to have them, veritable antiques.

Long tables were laid in the centre of the room, for repasts in the New England style. The chairs on which the guests sat while eating, almost all had a history, and many of them were peculiarly interesting from their associations. One of these chairs was one hundred and fifty years old, and had been buried in the earth at the time of the Revolution to save it from the destroying hands of the enemy. Among the furniture in the kitchen was a table formerly belonging to Governor Bradford, a clock, whose face was smashed by a British bullet in the Revolution, and some oil paintings from the panels of the British frigate Gurriere, which Commodore Hull, in the Constitution, so gloriously captured. Many interesting trophies hung upon the walls, or were scattered about on the venerable tables. Among these was a rifle that belonged to Patrick Henry; several Bibles of the days of the Puritans; a canteen carried in the Revolutionary War; a file of the Yankee newspaper, published in Stonington, Ct., in 1826; an exact copy of the famous Newport Mercury, date 1760; the New England Chronicle, 1775 to 1778, containing an affidavit recounting the particulars of the Battle of Lexington; a piece of a bride's dress of a hundred years ago, and many other very interesting relics of "ye olden tyme."

On a platform in one corner were several ancient spinning-wheels, which had been exhumed from the rubbish of old family garrets, and here they hummed away as merrily as they were wont to do under the deft touches of the fingers that fed them with the snow white wool a century ago—fingers long since crumbled into dust.

The fire-place was, of course, an important feature of the Kitchen. It was of huge dimensions, and strictly after the old New England type. In its capacious mouth an ox might have been roasted with ease. From the traditional trammel, swung a gigantic pot, in which, from time to time, were cooked great messes of unctuous chowder, or steaming quantums of "mush." From the ovens at the side, emerged at stated periods spicy

Indian puddings smoking loaves of Boston brown bread, and famous dishes of pork-and-beans, crisped to delicious perfection.

The tables were covered with old-fashioned china, and the guests returned, under the rigid rule of the place, to the ante-silver-fork period, and had to content themselves with the two-tined steel. White sugar was religiously ignored, and "modern improvements" generally were at a discount. The idea was to live in the Past, and the Present was ignominiously banished. Many, before leaving the New England Kitchen, howsoever well satisfied with the new ways about us, were fain to conclude "the old is better." On the tables were bountiful supplies of toothsome viands—pork and beans, cider apple-sauce, Boston brown bread, pitchers of cider, pumpkin, mince, and apple pies, doughnuts, and all the savory and delicate wealth of the New England larder. The guests were waited upon by damsels with curious names and quaint attire. Just such New England girls as spread the cloths, and cut the loaves of a century ago, were the neat-handed waitresses of the New England Kitchen of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair.

The venerable knitters in the corner, with their starched caps, and snowy kerchiefs crossed over the bosoms of their stuff gowns, the huge fire-place with its mighty logs, the dresser with its rows of shining pewter, the ever-ready churn, the tall clock sedately ticking in the corner, the ridge-poles strung with dried apples, pumpkins, glittering red peppers, seed-bags, and "yarbs" of healing virtues, the New England girls with their quaint costumes and uncouth speech—all made up a wonderfully striking scene, which, once beheld, could not soon be forgotten. Now and then an Indian, hideous in horns and paint, would stalk solemnly through the crowd, and one could almost feel the scalp creep uneasily on his head, as he thought of those wild men of the forest, whose visits to the kitchens of our ancestors were not unfrequently the premonitions of the blazing home, and the midnight massacre.

A BEAUTIFUL WORK OF ART.

One of the most elegant ornaments of the Kitchen was an allegorical representation of the progress of our Republic, with a faithful portrait of President Lincoln in the centre, the whole being drawn with a pen and ink, by Mr. J. E. Payne, one of the Advisory Committee of the Kitchen. This elegant work of art was sold in one hundred shares of $5 each, and transmitted to Mr. Lincoln. Among the subscribers was Horace Greeley, who very much admired it during a visit to the Kitchen.

THE ENTERTAINMENTS IN THE KITCHEN.

When the New England Kitchen was opened, it was determined to give a series of entertainments in which should be reproduced some of the peculiar social customs of our ancestors. These were excellently arranged, and carried out in the following order:

THE OLD FOLKS' CONCERT.

This was presented simply to give an idea of the method of rendering the music of a century ago. The singers were in old-fashioned dress, and went through with a programme which included "The New Jerusalem," "Invitation," "Ode to Science," "Majesty," and other old fugue tunes, much to the edification and delight of the auditors. Two or three concerts were given on as many evenings.

THE DONATION VISIT

was held on Thursday evening, Feb. 25. The scenes of a giving visit to the Parson, in the olden time, being very humorously rendered.

THE QUILTING PARTY

was held on Saturday evening, Feb. 27, the "old folks" industriously stitching on the quilt during the afternoon, while the "young folks" were summoned in to close the evening with due festivity.

THE APPLE BEE

was given Wednesday evening, March 3d, and was one of the best of the series of entertainments given in the Kitchen.

Part of the Hutchinson family were present, and the company were treated to some excellent music. A fine personation of a lady of the olden time was given by a young lady of Brooklyn. In the course of the evening stories were narrated and riddles and conundrums propounded for the company to guess. The audience were treated to a plentiful supply of doughnuts, and the evening's entertainment was closed with the singing of the National Hymn.

THE WEDDING.

This was the grand crowning effort of the managers of the New England Kitchen to reproduce the manners and customs of the past age. It took place on Thursday evening, March 2, Rev. Jedediah Poundtext, (Rev. T. L. Cuyler) officiating in laced cocked hat and black knee-breeches. The bride and groom were Mr. and Mrs. David S. Holmes, of Williamsburgh. Refreshments were bountifully supplied to all present. One of the pleasing incidents of the occasion was the presentation of a mammoth frosted cake to the bride by the ladies of Knickerbocker Hall. The festivities of the evening were closed with dancing in which all joined merrily.

During the time the Kitchen was open, several interesting letters were received from distinguished persons, among whom were Vice-President Hamlin, Secretary Seward, and Edward Everett. The latter gave a graphic description of the New England Kitchen in which he passed his boyhood.

A series of twelve stereoscopic pictures of scenes in the Kitchen, was taken by Mr. W. E. James, of 247 Fulton street.

The Kitchen was closed on Saturday night, March 5th, but the ladies of the Committee very generously re-opened it on Monday afternoon as an extemporized refreshment saloon, to supply the wants of the visitors to the Fair on Monday and Tuesday, Knickerbocker Hall having closed on Saturday.

The New England Kitchen was greatly cramped for room, and doubtless, had it had a space twice as large, it would have made a great deal more money. It was crowded constantly.

On the roll of honor for effective work in this department are Messrs. Goodrich, Coffin, Potter, Elwell, Murray, Kendall, Holmes; Mesdames, Swan, Cornell, W. B. Ackley, J. J. Couch, R. H. Manning, Plummer, Lambert, M. P. Mills, Wm. S. Murray, F. W. Leonard, Misses L. Rich, F. E. Cook, H. H. Daily, C. Dexter, Mrs. Peet, Manning, Misses Berry, Cook, Shepherd, Gault, Cochrane, Dix, the Misses Emerson, the Misses Watson, Mrs. Bicknell, Mrs. Brewster, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Daily, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. James.

A lady contributes to the Chicago Journal a very interesting account of the New England Kitchen, where she was one of the servers, which she closes as follows :

In conclusion, I may say that I never enjoyed anything more than my five days work in the New England Kitchen. A more amiable, refined, sweet-tempered company of ladies never worked together, or in greater harmony. We felt mutual sorrow at parting, and bid each other good-bye, most affectionately, never expecting to meet again on earth. One was about to go to California, one to Chicago, one to Salem, Mass., one to West Pennsylvania, etc., etc. And so our little band broke up and scattered, and you would have thought, to have seen our parting, that we were friends of years' standing, and yet we parted under our assumed names, not knowing, except in a few instances, the real one. And very pleasant will it be for me, in after years, to hear myself addressed by my old name,

EXPERIENCE.

THE HALL OF MANUFACTURES.

THE Hall of Manufactures was located, as we have observed, under the same roof with the New England Kitchen. It was a large frame apartment, 60x100, handsomely decorated with evergreens and flags, and filled with a very choice and valuable stock of goods.

On entering the Hall, through the covered bridge, from the Academy, the first object to be noticed on the right, was a soda-fountain erected by Mr. George Reynolds, of 260 Court street. Directly in front, and stretching the entire length of the Hall, was a table on which was exhibited every variety of housekeeping goods, of wood, tin, brittania, etc. On this table were also trunks, leather, rubber goods, a small steam engine, skates, guns and revolvers, and a host of other articles.

THE SEWING MACHING DEPARTMENT

was a very valuable one, nearly all the manufacturers of that now indispensable article having contributed to the Fair. The machines were arranged on a raised platform extending the entire length of the room, and their merry clatter made a pleasant variation from the incessant clamor of the crowd. There were other musical sounds in this Hall, Messrs. Mason & Hamlin having donated several of their parlor organs, which were never silent.

The "Burglar Alarm Telegraph," also kept up an unceasing silvery ding dong from its corner. There were two elegantly finished boats, several carriages, a large assortment of stoves, grates and heaters, any quantity of "hobby horses" and childrens' carriages, there were lamp and gas fixtures, chamber furniture, rustic seats, metallic coffins, paints, grindstones, agricultural implements, soap, hams, starch, flour, saddles, harness, hardware, stove blacking, marble-top washstands, an elegant pleasure boat from T. S. Dick, of Greenpoint, and another from H. T. Rigby, of East Warren street, there were machine-saws, casks and barrels, hay-press, cotton gin, fancy chairs, steam engine worth $700, from Hubbard & Whittaker, Union lamps, steam pumps, clothes mangles, and a thousand other useful and beautiful articles, all most tastefully and attractively arranged under the direction of Messrs. White & Nichols, of No. 208 Fulton street, who had general charge of this important room. The Grocery Department was under the skilful charge of Mr. Waring, of Fulton street. Two large Committees, one from the Eastern and one from the Western District, embracing many of our leading manufacturers and business men, had the collection of contributions for this Hall under their charge, and most effectively did they perform their duty. The names of these committees will be found in the Appendix. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. White, cashier, ex-Alderman Jenkins, and W. W. Armfield, E. D., for their active efforts in this department.

SOME OF THE NOTABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.

The proprietors of the Universal Clothes-Wringer early made to the Fair the magnificent donation of five hundred of their excellent seven dollar machines. The agent of the Putnam Clothes-Wringer also contributed to the Fair as many of the machines as could be sold. These machines were deposited in Mechanics' Hall, where they could at any time be seen in practical operation. Another very useful article was Hawse's Patent Clothes-Dryer, which gave many of our housekeepers a "new wrinkle" in the clothes drying art, and which was only smoothed out by an incontinent purchase of the machine.

SOME OF THE FRUITS OF FREE-LABOR.

In this Hall were also exhibited a bale of cotton, made on the Sea Islands of South Carolina, by free labor, and contributed to the Fair at the solicitation of Albert G. Browne, Esq., supervising special agent of the Treasury Department at Beaufort, by E. S. Philbrick, Esq., agent of a New England planting company at Hilton Head. This cotton was fully equal to the best ever raised by slave labor, and was sold for $504, being rather more than its market value. There was another bale of free-labor cotton from New Orleans, together with a hogshead of sugar, and a barrel of molasses, all the gift of Hon. B. F. Flanders, supervising special agent of the Treasury Department; and also a hogshead of splendid free-labor sugar, sent by Messrs. Brott & Davis, of New Orleans, who, in transmitting it, wrote:

During the past year we have carried on thirteen plantations in the neighborhood of this city, and on all of them our laborers have either been employed at a fixed price for their services per month or by a proportion of the profits of the several crops; and now, in the closing of their accounts, we give ready testimony to the zeal, intelligence, and application of the negroes who have been in our employ, and the pecuniary success of the enterprise has been such as to amply justify us in leasing a larger number of plantations for the ensuing year.

It is also with us a matter of great interest that the Brooklyn Fair should, if possible, eclipse any of its predecessors for a similar purpose. Two of the partners of our house were for many years residents of the good "City of Churches," and though now citizens of the other extremity of the Union, have lost none of their interest in the concerns of their late home.

Wishing yourself and your associates in this benevolence the greatest success,

We remain yours, most respectfully,

BROTT & DAVIS.

This sugar was sold readily for twenty cents per pound. It may well be believed that these tide-marks of the advancing wave of Freedom which is sweeping Slavery from this continent, were contemplated with at least as much interest and satisfaction as any other contributions to the Fair.

THE CINCINNATI BROOM.

In the centre of Mechanics' Hall was hung a mammoth broom, forwarded from Cincinnati to the Fair, with the following challenge to Brooklyn: "Sent by the Managers of the Cincinnati Fair, greeting: We have swept up $240,000;

Brooklyn, beat this if you can." To this, as soon as the magnificent result of our Fair began to loom up so that an approximate estimate could be made, some "sporting" member of the Committee on Manufactures appended the following addenda:

"Brooklyn sees the $240,000, and goes $150,000 better."

THE DEPOT OF THE WOMAN'S RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

The depot of the Woman's Relief Association, removed for the nonce from No. 6 Court street, was located in the Hall of Manufactures, where it occupied a snug corner, enclosed by a low railing. Here the processes of preparing and packing goods for the soldiers' and hospital use went forward unremittingly, cases containing some five thousand garments being on hand in the depot.

Thoughtful visitors to the Fair regarded this quiet spot with a rare and affectionate interest, for there was to be seen a glimpse of the inner life of this terrible struggle—the undercurrent, that, moved by the heavenly love and charity of woman, flows pure and strong and steady beneath the bloody, turbid tide of war. Here was to be seen the proof that the soldiers of the Republic are not alone the manly braves who bear up her glorious banner where blows fall thickly, and shrilly hum the bees of death, but that there are other soldiers working and fighting with woman's sublime constancy and faith, and a courage that endures when the hearts of strong men faint and fail—working with woman's weapons of purse, and needle, and encouragement and prayer, for the cause that is dearer than life. As the sweetest flowers of the forest, the early violets of Spring, nestle in the most secluded nooks, and are only traced by the incense they cannot conceal, so woman's part in this great struggle for nationality and freedom is performed out of sight, and is only known by the fruits it bears. It is not too much to say that, but for woman's hand, and woman's heart sustaining the national cause, that cause would ere this have sunk in gloom and blood.

With the women of our land so nearly a unit in patriotic devotion to that cause, it must surely prevail, and, by the grace of God helping us, it shall prevail. Already more than one noble woman has laid down her life from excessive labor in behalf of the Great Charity to which the Brooklyn and Long Fair ministered.* When the history of this War is written its most shining page will be that which records the faith, the courage, and the love of Woman, which fortified and blessed our Nation in its day of trial.

To the battle's bloodiest marge,
Where the foemen thickest charge,
And the flags of Freedom wave;
Where the cannon's crimson lips
Roar along the flaming ships,
Honor flies to crown the brave.

But the brightest crown she hath
Who, with woman's heavenly faith—
Girding weapon to his thigh—
Lest the holy cause should fail,
And her country's foes prevail,
Sends her dearest forth to die.

* Mrs. Caroline M. Kirkland, the favorite authoress, and Mrs. David Dudley Field, both lost their lives through excessive and exhausting labors for the New York Fair.

THE MUSEUM OF ARTS, RELICS AND CURIOSITIES.

THIS unique and interesting department of the Fair occupied the Taylor Mansion, on the corner of Montague and Clinton streets. Here were collected a vast number of relics of priceless value, which are cherished by their owners as more precious than rubies or diamonds, brought out to add to the attractions of this great effort in behalf of the National Charity, and most of which the public will probably never have another opportunity of seeing. Then there were the torn and battle-stained flags of many of our noble Union Regiments, side by side with numerous trophies wrested from Rebellion, on the historic fields, and in the glorious sea-fights of the war. China, India, Japan, and the Islands of the sea, also contributed of their rare and wonderful products to enrich and adorn this Grand Collection.

THE MUSEUM BUILDING.

On entering, on the left, the visitor found a small room where were collected a large number of paintings and other works of Art, contributed for sale. Some of these were of considerable merit. A catalogue will be found in the Appendix. Here, also, was exhibited the Album of Sketches by Amateur Artists, heretofore described.

In the main rooms, or parlors, on the first floor, was located the grand collection of Curiosities and Relics. To give an adequate idea of the wonders of this apartment, we must refer the reader to the catalogue in the Appendix. The unequalled collection of Washington relics, the mementoes of Chief Justice Jay, and the superb case of Mrs. St. John were constantly surrounded by eager, interested throngs.

On the same floor, on the other side of the hall, was the room devoted to the exhibition of Army trophies and mementoes. One of the most interesting features of this room was a collection of the various descriptions and sizes of shot and shell used by the Union and Rebel forces. The antique arms exhibited were also very curious. In this little apartment the visitor found himself face to face with grim-visaged War. But, after all, he only saw here a few waifs that had drifted out from the bloody turmoil in which our fathers, husbands, sons and brothers are surging, in this war for National life. It is one thing to contemplate with calmly curious gaze a few torn and scorched banners, and to handle a harmless fragment of shell which has once crashed through the side of a gun-boat, but it is quite another to charge through the withering blaze of musketry that had to be faced by our gallant boys before they could call that miserable rag their own, or to hear the dreadful howl of the invisible shell as it comes, laden with death, to the crowded deck. There were lessons to be learned in that little room, and he was no true man whose prayers did not thence arise that God would, in His infinite mercy, bless and protect our gallant soldiers and sailors.

On the second floor, the three front rooms were fitted up as a Gallery of Engravings. The Sub-Committee on Engravings, consisting of Messrs. John M. Falconer, Chairman, Charles Congdon, Henry Ward Beecher, Charles Burt, S. P. Avery, and Chas. Parsons, determined that this department of the Fair should not be excelled in interest and beauty. An extract from their circular to Artists and Collectors, says :

"No public Exhibition of Engravings has ever taken place on this Continent, to our knowledge. Seeking to initiate such, we ask you to place at our disposal a part of the ample material that exists. We want, if possible, as Donations or on Loan, a full represensation of the Chalcographic Art, from its most ancient date down to the latest discoveries and inventions of the day. It may be classified, viz :

Line,	Mezzotint,	Stipple,	Mixed Engravings,
Etchings,	Lithographs,	Wood Engravings,	Color-Printings.

Also, Artistic Photographs, when choice and important in subject.

In every instance the choicest Impressions are sought, and, if possible, framed under glass—failing these, prints from the portfolio will be acceptable. The greatest possible care will be taken of their surface and margins, in arranging and returning them when desired. Insurance will be effected when required."

The result was the finest collection of Engravings ever seen on this Continent. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher lent to the project his rare enthusiasm and electric force and spirit. He placed at the disposal of the Committee his own collection of choice proof Engravings—perhaps the finest in our city, and equaled by few elsewhere. Messrs. C. Burt, W. H. Swan, and J. M. Falconer, also contributed very largely to the collection, Mr. Swan contributing many of the best for sale. The variety, extent, and merit of this Gallery of Engravings can only be estimated by a study of the Catalogue which we reproduce in the Appendix.

A room next the Gallery of Engravings was occupied by a splendid collection of Eastern curiosities, Chinese and Japanese wares, etc. This room contained, of itself, material demanding a day's attentive examination and study.

In a small room on the same floor were some of Robert Fulton's models and drawings. These were exhibited by Chas. W. Copeland, Esq., the eminent civil engineer of this city. There was also in this room an elegant and complete working model of a pontoon train—wagons, boats, bridges, etc., constructed by the Engineer Corps of General Benham expressly for the Fair. This interesting and valuable model was purchased for presentation to the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute.

On the second floor was also a room devoted to the sale of photographs, cartes de visite, moss, cone and leather work, seaweeds, collections of autumn leaves, and a large number of other articles which could not well be classified in any particular department of the Fair. Among the contributors to the large assortment of photographs—which comprised portraits of all our leading generals and public men, and copies of celebrated works of art—were Messrs. Sherman, Moran, and Brady. Mr. Sherman contributed superb colored imperial photographs of Rev. Drs. Storrs, Littlejohn, and Farley. Mr. Brady contributed large and elegant photographs of A. A. Low, Esq., and his Honor, Mayor A. M. Wood. All of the above photographers also gave a large number of orders for photographs to be sold to visitors to the Fair. The Brooklyn Institute contributed fifty photographic copies of “Brooklyn fifty years ago.”

THE AUTOGRAPH ROOM.

Retired as was the modest room appropriated to the exhibition and sale of Autographs, and devoid as it was of any gaud or glitter to attract the crowd, it was speedily discovered by the thoughtful and appreciative, the antiquary and the student, that its narrow compass embraced a wealth which was, perhaps, paralleled by no apartment in the entire building.

Of Autograph Albums there were several conspicuous for tasteful and sumptuous binding, and more than one containing such autographic treasures as are rarely clasped between the covers of any single collection. Among the most noteworthy was an album contributed by Miss Mary C. Jarvis, containing patriotic sentiments and poems—many of them written expressly for the collection—from Bayard Taylor, Fitz-Greene Halleck, Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg, Geo. H. Boker, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Walter Channing, T. S. Arthur, Rev. A. Cleveland Cox, Hon. William H. Seward, J. Lothrop Motley, Charles Sumner, Major-General B. F. Butler, Major-General A. E. Burnside, Brigadier-General Anderson, Major-General Geo. B. McClellan, General O. M. Mitchell, Rear Admiral J. A. Dahlgren, Capt. John L. Worden, Edward Everett, Hon. John P. Kennedy, J. T. Headley, James Russell Lowell, William Cullen Bryant, Henry W. Longfellow, John G. Whittier, Henry T. Tuckerman, O. W. Holmes, John G. Saxe, Parke Godwin, George William Curtis, J. G. Holland, Donald G.

Mitchell, Nathaniel Hawthorne, James Parton, Regis Gignoux, Caroline Chesebro, Elizabeth T. Porter Beach, Mrs. L. H. Sigourney, "Fanny Fern," Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, Dr. Hitchcock, F. D. Huntington, Horace Greeley, John Minor Potts, Rev. Dr. Farley, and others. Most of the contributions to the album were accompanied by private notes from those sending them, full of expressions of sympathy with and interest in the great object of the Fair.

It is a matter of regret that so few of the visitors to the Fair had an opportunity to examine this valuable album, as it was sold as soon as presented for exhibition, and removed at once. It brought two hundred dollars.

Miss Jarvis contributed another album scarcely second to the first in value, and, to many, of far greater interest. This contained autographic copies of the prayers composed for parochial use by the loyal Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, touching the present grievous national crisis. This was sold for the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars. Mr. Geo. A. Jarvis contributed fifty lithographic copies of the prayers, which were readily sold at $3 each. Among Mr. Jarvis's contributions to this department was a letter of Benedict Arnold, and an autograph copy of Mr. Seward's famous despatch to Mr. Dayton upon the subject of French recognition of the Rebel Confederacy. Mr. George Jarvis, Sr., contributed an album containing autographic copies of the last Thanksgiving Proclamations of the loyal governors, the number being very nearly complete. Miss Kate Ripley presented a beautiful album, containing contributions from nearly all our best-known American poets, many of the pieces being composed for the book. This fine collection brought two hundred dollars. Miss Clara C. Harrison contributed an album, containing autographs of the statesmen of our country; and Mr. L. B. Wyman contributed a superbly bound album, containing autographs of a large number of public men, and all the members of the present Congress, which was sold for two hundred and fifty dollars.

Among the other autographs were letters from John Wesley, several of Washington, (one of which was to Franklin,) Walter Scott, Uncas, Israel Putnam, William Prince of Orange, Duke of Alva, Queen Elizabeth, and John Brown's last letter to his cousin, of which lithographed copies were for sale. Mr. J. Carson Brevoort exhibited a very interesting relic, being a letter of Hannah Arnold, mother of Benedict Arnold, to her son. Mr. William Kemble exhibited fac-simile copies of all the papers found upon Major Andre when captured by the American Scouts on the Hudson. Among other contributors to the Autographic Department were Messrs. Henry Ward Beecher, Ex-Governor John A. King, Theodore Dwight, Samuel Coleman, Gordon L. Ford, D. C. Kellogg, Gouverneur Morris, Mrs. J. R. St. John, Mrs. Annie Messenger and many more.

Among the ladies and gentlemen whose services were conspicuous in the collection, arrangement, exhibition, and sale of the articles in the Museum, were Mrs. S. B. Chittenden, Chairman of the Ladies, and Mr. E. S. Mills, Chairman of the Gentleman's Committees on Arts, Relics and Curiosities, Mrs. A. Henshaw, Mrs. Gordon L. Ford, Mrs. J. O. Low, Mrs. Chas. Congdon, Mrs. J. F. Howard, Mrs. Captain John L. Worden, Mrs. Captain Radford, Miss Cooper, Miss Rebecca Paulding, Mrs. William M. Richards, Miss Mary Stranahan, Mrs. A. C. Rossiere, Mrs. J. R. St. John, Mrs. Wm. St. John, Miss Sarah Luqueer, Miss C. M. Olcott, Mrs. Henry A. Dike, Misses Eliza and Kate Ripley, Miss Kate Taylor, Miss Emma F. Wallace, Mrs. Edward Butler, and others. Messrs. J. M. Falconer and C. Burt hung the Engravings, and Mr. P. Ryder the Pictures in the sales room. Mr. Gordon L. Ford was of great service in the Autograph Room, and Messrs. John W. Frothingham, R. W. Hubbard and A. M. Muir, rendered valuable aid in many ways.

THE DRUM-BEAT.

HIS was the first attempt made at any of the Sanitary Fairs, to issue a daily newspaper. It is true, at some of the previous Fairs, Printing Presses were erected and in operation, from which daily bulletins were issued, but these were more for the purpose of showing the working of the press than with an idea of making a bona fide journal. In the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair a bolder project was conceived, being nothing less than the issue of a daily morning paper, with all its appointments complete. The following extract from the prospectus, issued by the Committee having the matter in charge, will show the design and scope of the proposed paper:

It will be under the editorial charge of REV. R. S. STORRS, JR., D. D., assisted by competent writers and reporters; and original contributions are already promised for its columns by eminent writers. In addition to articles original and selected, and a department of entertaining miscellany, it will contain a complete Directory to the Fair, and a daily report of the sales, incidents, and general chit-chat of the previous day.

The committee hope and believe that it will be a spirited and interesting paper, gladly welcomed and freely purchased by the patrons of the Fair, and distributed by them to their friends and correspondents in other parts of the country.

It will be printed on a sheet of eight pages of nearly the same size and general style with the pages of the "Army and Navy Journal," and sold for five cents per copy; and the committee hope for a daily circulation of eight to ten thousand copies. * * *

The committee are happy to say that such arrangements have been made for the publication of the paper, that every dollar received for advertisements will go directly, without diminution, into the Treasury of the Sanitary Commission.

Applications for advertisements may be made either at the office of the "Union," No. 10 Front street, Brooklyn, or of Messrs. Charnley & Hatch, Bankers, No. 34 Wall street, N. Y.

S. B. CALDWELL, W. T. HATCH, J. M. VAN COTT,

CHAS. NORDHOFF, A. S. BARNES, Committee.

BROOKLYN, February, 1864.

The editorship of the paper was, as appears by the prospectus, offered to Rev. R. S. Storrs Jr., D. D. who generously undertook the onerous charge, associating with himself Mr. Francis Williams, City Editor of the New York Evening Post, who prepared for each day's issue a "Record of the Fair," written in the chaste and graphic style for which he is distinguished.

The first number of the Drum-Beat was issued on Monday morning, Feb. 22d, and the paper was issued daily thereafter, the last regular number appearing on Saturday morning, March 5th. A supplementary number was also issued on Friday, March 11. Each number contained twenty-four wide columns. The first page bore an appropriate vignette. The typographical appearance of the paper was universally commended.

Those who know anything of the difficulties which beset the establishment of a newspaper enterprise must concede that the Drum-Beat, considering especially the magnitude of the task undertaken, was most creditable to the industry and editorial ability of its distinguished conductor. Its columns were daily filled with interesting matter, nearly the whole of which was prepared for the paper. Among the contributors were some of the most eminent literary men of the country, although, unfortunately, some of the best things sent came too late for use. A regular and brilliant contributor to the paper was Captain R. W. Raymond, who wrote a series of articles over the signature "Augustus Watts," describing his "Experience of the Great Fair," which added not a little to the attractiveness and variety of the paper.

The principle adopted by the editor of the Drum-Beat in the conduct of the paper was to make it not merely an amusing trifle, to bring in by its sale a certain number of dollars to the Fair, and not even merely a compendium of choice literary reading to gratify the cultured taste. It was to make it, as far as possible, an effective agent to keep alive, and augment the popular interest and the popular efforts in behalf of the Fair. To this end its editorials and selected articles all tended, aiming to present the claims of our soldiers upon the sympathy and support of the nation in the strongest possible light. It was intended to be, and was, a vigorous and earnest lay preacher in behalf of the Sanitary Commission, and the great work in hand. None will deny that it did excellent service in this direction. The daily circulation averaged about six thousand copies.

Among the noticeable features of the Drum-Beat were its humorous illustrations, one or more appearing every day, generally of subjects apropos to the Fair. These were mainly from designs by some of our best comic artists, Messrs. McLenan, Bellew, Muller, and Beard; a number were from the pencil of a talented young lady, formerly a resident of this city.

The history of the Drum-Beat would be incomplete did we fail to notice the fact that the entire cost of the type-setting and printing was assumed by S. B. Chittenden, Esq., one of the members of the Executive Committee of the Fair.

We should also note that much of the success of the paper was due to the able management of its business department, by Messrs. Samuel B. Caldwell and W. T. Hatch, while the entire Committee, whose names are given above, were assiduous in their efforts to make it both a pecuniary success and an honor to the Fair.

THE CATTLE SHOW.

A cattle-show was not wanting to complete the interest of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair. A splendid Durham Bull, presented by Elias Howe, Jr., occupied a comfortable stable near the New England Kitchen: he was sold by shares for $500. The pair of Steers promised by Mr. S. B. Chittenden were promptly forthcoming, and were sold at auction in front of the Academy on February 28th, for $295.

THE CALICO BALL.

IT was determined, as the Fair was drawing to a close, to terminate it with a grand "Calico Ball," the proceeds of which were to be appropriated to the Brooklyn Female Employment Society, to be disbursed for the benefit of the soldiers' families. Accordingly, on Tuesday evening, March 8th, a meeting of gentlemen was held in the Directors' Room of the Academy, to take the necessary steps for the Ball. After some discussion as to time, etc., the following resolution, offering by W. W. Goodrich, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That it is deemed advisable to have a Calico Ball, the same to be held on Friday evening of the present week, the proceeds of which shall be applied for the relief of the families of the soldiers of Brooklyn, and be paid into the hands of I. H. Frothingham, Esq., for that purpose.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

It was then resolved that a Committee of one hundred, should be appointed to carry out the object and purpose of the foregoing resolution.

Mr. McLean was unanimously selected as Chairman of the Committee.

The following Committees were subsequently chosen:

FLOOR COMMITTEE—Col. J. B. Woodward, Chairman. D. W. Van Ingen, W. L. Ogden. H. G. Cullen, Jr., W. R. Bunker, R. C. Ward, C. H. Hunter, W. C. Smith, S. P. Hurlburt, C. Hadden, Jr., Joseph G. Story, W. A. McKee, C. P. Gulick, R. B. Woodward, F. A. Baldwin, Philip H. Briggs, A. H. Williams, James B. Beebe, A. S. Gatche, Joseph Howard, Jr., H. D. Polhemus.

REFRESHMENT COMMITTEE—E. H. Stephenson, Chairman. Wm. R. Bunker, B. F. Wyman, W. L. Ogden.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE—C. W. Blossom, Chairman. A. Mewer, A. McCue, Jos. B. Blossom, R. B. Lawrence, A. E. Sumner, J. L. B. Willard, Geo. D. Puffer, A. Hegeman, Jr., W. W. Goodrich.

PRINTING COMMITTEE—S. G. Butler, Chairman. J. W. Croxson.

The ball was given with great eclat on Friday evening, March 11th. More than half the ladies were in plain calico dresses. The music was furnished by Sanger's and Dodworth's Bands. The supper was served under the direction of Mr. Charles Varick, in Knickerbocker Hall, and it was the last of its glories. Henceforth it was

"A banquet hall deserted,
Its lights all fled, its garlands dead."

The Ball netted about two thousand dollars for the worthy object for which it was given. After the Ball, many of the ladies who were present sent their calico dresses to the Academy to be given to the soldiers' wives and daughters.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT TO THE PRESS.

IN CLOSING this History of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair, it is but appropriate, as well as an act of simple justice to allude to the great services rendered the enterprise by the Public Press of the City, in both the Eastern and Western Districts, and throughout the Island. We express not only the feeling of the Executive Officers of the Fair, both Ladies and Gentlemen, but that of the entire community, when we recognize the fact that to the cordial support of the undertaking by the Press of the City and Island, during the preparatory steps, and the copious and graphic daily reports furnished by the city papers during the progress of the Fair, its great success was in a large measure due. While the press of the neighboring Metropolis—with a few honorable exceptions, of which should be particularly noted the Evening Post, which gave several very excellent notices of the Fair—to a large degree ignored our undertaking, the duty of awakening and keeping alive the popular enthusiasm devolved almost entirely upon the local Press, and most nobly and efficiently did they perform their work. In contrasting the results of the Great Metropolitan Fair just closed, with those of the effort of Brooklyn and Long Island, let it be remembered that, while the latter had the advantage of the support of the great Metropolitan Journals, which circulate all over the country, reaching even to lands beyond the sea, and thus interesting and impelling multitudes from abroad to contribute to its success, we were in a great measure cut off from these important aids. That a success so magnificent crowned our efforts, notwithstanding this drawback, is certainly a most significant tribute to the power and influence of our Press. Had we received the assistance that was reasonably expected from the Metropolitan papers, which are not wont to neglect events transpiring at their own doors of the magnitude and importance of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair, it is highly probable the latter would have proved even a more formidable competitor than it did with the Metropolis and its numerous aids, for the honor of having produced the greatest of the Sanitary Fairs.

With a desire, therefore, for only that which is our rightful honor, it is but fair and just to claim for Brooklyn and Long Island, considering the amount of their population and the auxiliaries at command, that they have eclipsed all efforts yet made in aid of the United States Sanitary Commission.

IN CONCLUSION,

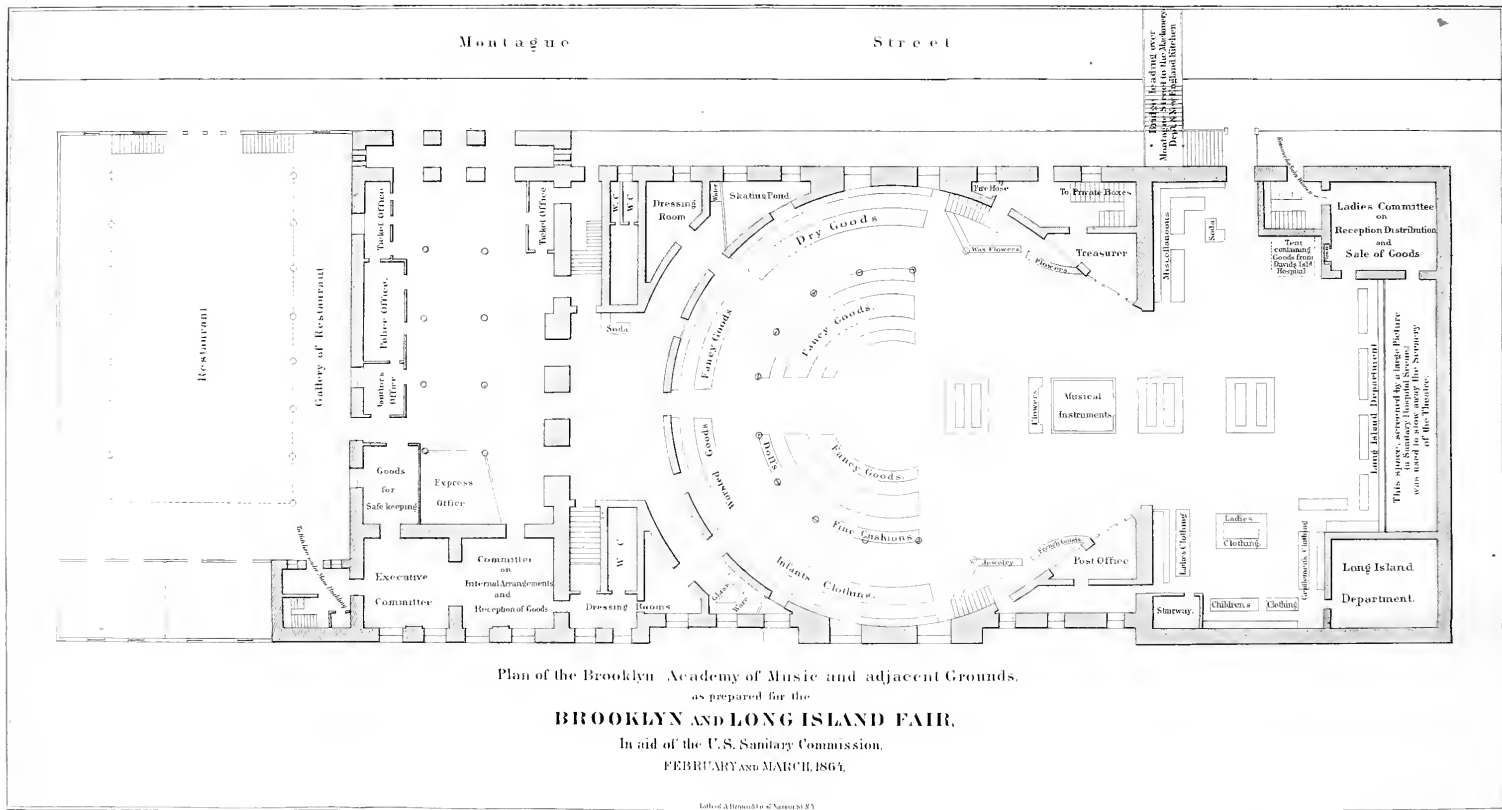

We felicitate our fellow citizens of Brooklyn and Long Island on the successful inauguration, progress, and results of our Great Sanitary Fair. Our preparations were made under the most auspicious circumstances, and with active and experienced agencies, to which we referred in the beginning, to form the germ of the thorough and efficient organization, under whose care it was conducted. The very heavens seemed to smile on us. At a season which with us is usually marked by severe cold, and often as severe storms, the large temporary buildings which were required in addition, to the Academy of Music and the Taylor Mansion, were erected almost to their completion under uniformly bright and genial skies, and not a casualty of any kind marred or saddened for a moment the progress of the work. The day of the opening was specially beautiful, rendering the military parade most agreeable to the men under arms, and to the throngs who beheld it. During the entire fortnight of the Fair, there was scarcely a day in which it was not pleasant to be abroad, and the same exemption from untoward accidents as attended these preparations continued to its close. Every individual among the multitudes who attended it seemed to regard it as a great Festival of Love, and to reciprocate the kindest sympathies. When we speak of its results, we primarily refer to the Four Hundred Thousand Dollars it poured into the Treasury of the United States Sanitary Commission, for the care and relief of our sick and suffering soldiers. Thus viewed, they are goodly and grand. But the Island and its chief City will inevitably, unless grossly unfaithful to themselves, realize much more and greater. Brooklyn, especially, has seized and secured new vantage ground for future consideration and respect throughout the land, and for the truest greatness, attractiveness, and enjoyment within herself. She has nobly illustrated her resources. She has shown the taste, the wealth, the co-operative energy of her population. She has proved incontestibly the generous loyalty of her citizens. Now let her be faithful to the great trust, which, as an unavoidable inference, is in her hands. Whatever she needs in Institutions of Art, Learning or Charity, to make her, in a far higher sense than that of mere numbers, wealth, and growth, a great city, she shows to the world she has ability to possess. And if this Fair, in its great proportions and eminent success is appreciated by her citizens as it deserves, its future and best results will be found in the fresh and permanent impulse given to every wise purpose and plan for increasing the attractiveness of Brooklyn as a place of residence; paving in the best way, cleaning, and keeping clean the streets; improving and extending the Public Parks; perfecting the Civic and Sanitary Police; liberally fostering, and increasing the grades of the Public Schools, creating and sustaining a Great Public Library, and Schools and Galleries of Science and Art, and permanently endowing her admirable institutions of benevolence. The salubrity and loveliness of her superb territorial position will then be but the type of what should and may be hers—the proud pre-eminence of a model American and Republican city.

GENERAL CIRCULAR OF THE
BROOKLYN AND LONG ISLAND FAIR, IN AID OF THE United States Sanitary Commission.

In the terrible conflict now being waged for the preservation of our Government and Nationality, everything belonging to our personal, social, and political welfare is at stake, and the brave and gallant men in arms are periling their lives, and giving up the comfort and joy of their homes, in our stead. They fight these hard battles for us. They endure these severe exposures for us. They are wasting away in the filth and starvation of Rebel prisons for us. And, when stricken down by the diseases of the camp, or wounded and maimed in the field, they have a right, sanctioned by every patriotic and humane consideration, to expect the Nation to come to their succor. The U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION, by its most disinterested and gratuitous labors, has proved itself the wise, prompt, faithful, reliable, and sufficient agent of the Nation in this regard; and, therefore, by a FAIR, to be opened on the birth-day of the Father of his Country, the 22d of February next, at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, we purpose and confidently expect to secure from the City, and the entire Island, a contribution of at least One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars to its Treasury. The inspiring example of other Cities—Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati—should excite among us an honorable emulation. Let it be seen that in this great national crisis, we are at least as generous, self-sacrificing, and resolved, as the foremost of them. This enterprise has been undertaken at the instance of the Woman's Relief Association, and the War Fund Committee, of this City. As an earnest of the spirit which has prompted it and will carry it through, we point to the fact, that at a meeting of the General Committee, on the 19th ult., Twenty-five Thousand Five Hundred Dollars were subscribed on the spot; an amount already increased to Forty Thousand Dollars. As a further pledge that the enterprise shall not fail, we subjoin the names of those of either sex who have consented to share its Management; with those of the various sub-Committees, who are responsible for the complete working of the several departments of the FAIR. We appeal to our fellow-citizens and noble women here, and throughout the Island, and to those elsewhere who may fairly be expected to sympathize with us in our undertaking, to lend their aid by personal efforts, and by the largest contributions of Material and Money, of Agricultural Produce, of the fruits of Manufacturing and Mechanical skill, of Works of Art; of anything and everything from their industry, ingenuity, or abundance, which may swell the grand result for which we look.

Further particulars in relation to the arrangements for the FAIR will be made known as early as possible, by Circulars from the several Special Committees, and by other documents from the Executive Committee; and a complete History of the FAIR, with the Contributions and Names of the Donors, will be published. A handsome Steel Engraved Certificate of Membership will be also given to every active contributor.

Meanwhile, any desired information in regard to the FAIR may be had of the Corresponding Secretary, either by personal application, at the Rooms of the War Fund Committee, 16 Court Street, daily, (Sundays excepted,) between the hours of 9 and 12, and 2 and 5; or, by mail to his address; or, for Ladies, at the Depot of the Woman's Relief Association, 30 Court Street.

REPORT OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON DECORATIONS.

The following is an abstract of the report of the Sub-Committee on Decorations, of which Mr. J. H. Degrauw was the efficient chairman:

As the Advisory Committee provided no department for Horticulture, no arrangements were made to make a large display, and in many instances merchandise of various kinds were sold on different tables with flowers. If it had not been for this circumstance, there can be no doubt but the Treasurer would have received from this source considerably over three thousand dollars. Your Committee feel that they cannot close their report without directing your attention to a number of Gentlemen who most liberally contributed to the furnishing of the decorations. We leave the Committee from the Brooklyn Horticultural Society to report the contributions to the Horticultural table. The Horticultural Society rendered the Committee most valuable service. The evergreens were mostly from Greenwood, amounting to a large number of double-team loads; they were all furnished by Mr. George Gamjee, without any expense to the Committee. Your Committee view that he should be presented with a special notice of our appreciation of his patriotism and benevolence. The Committee were also much indebted to the Brooklyn Fire Department for generous loan of all their anniversary decorations. We acknowledge with pleasure the loan of all the bunting for decorating the Auditorium, from Messrs. William Ayman & Co.; also the loan of near fifty flags from Thomas Brooks, Esq. We feel under many obligations to Messrs. Carl & Husted for the loan of various articles suited for decorating, as well as for their personal services, and furnishing a number of men in their employ, on all occasions when they were required. The Committee with pleasure acknowledge the services of Mr. Stephen Kidder, in furnishing all the looking-glasses for Knickerbocker Hall; also of N. Waring, Esq., for the loan of flags; also to Stuart & Co., in furnishing men from their establishment on various occasions; also the Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, for a large supply of flags; also to the St. Nicholas Society for the loan of their large flag; also to a number of Gentlemen, of whom the Committee did not obtain their names, who furnished flags and other decorations; also to A. S. Fuller for a large quantity of horticultural decorations from New Jersey, furnished at his own expense; also to Mr. Weir, for his constant attention to the requirements of the Committee during the Fair.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON MUSIC.

The Committee on Music of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair, in aid of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, respectfully report :

That the multiplicity of public and private entertainments of all kinds, which were given in behalf of the Fair during their official existence, rendered it inadvisable to tax much further the already surfeited appetite of the people, by adding to the number.

Besides this, the Committee found their province preoccupied, and their action forestalled on every side by other committees whose jurisdiction was so nearly coincident with their own that the field of their duty was reduced to very narrow limits.

The following list comprises all the entertainments which the Committee were able to avail themselves of, with the several sums accruing therefrom to the cause, viz. :

Concert of the Philharmonic Society.....	$918 00	Two Parlor Entertainments given by the late Pupils of P. K. Weizel, Esq., under his direction, at the house of E. W. Dunham, Esq.	$264 60

The Committee also state that liberal contributions had recently been forwarded to the Sanitary Commission from the numerous organizations of patriotic ladies throughout the Island, and they have reason to believe that the amount thus forwarded, for the year preceding the Great Fair, may be fairly estimated at $5,000.

It would thus appear that the Commission has received from the counties of Queens and Suffolk, (including $5,810 05 contributed to the Metropolitan Fair from Flushing,) in cash and hospital stores, during the time mentioned, nearly thirty-one thousand five hundred dollars, and that the good work is now pressed even more vigorously than before.

To the above should be added a large amount of clothing and hospital stores delivered to the Woman's Relief Association of Brooklyn.

We note briefly here the entertainments alluded to, returns from which will be found duly credited in the Treasurer's report. It is possible that the list may not be perfectly complete, as there were a number of parlor entertainments given of which no public notice was made.

TABLEAUX VIVANTS,

Of these there were a number of exhibitions, chief among which was a series of three given at the Athenæum, on the evenings of February 22, 23 and 24, under the direction of a Sub-committee on Tableaux of the Committee on Benefits, Entertainments, Etc. This was an entertainment of marked excellence and brilliant success.

Two spirited amateur dramatic entertainments were given at the Athenæum on the evenings of February 2 and 4, under the management of Dr. Hull.

AUXILIARY FAIRS.

On the 29th and 30th of December the children of Public School, District No. 3, held a Fair in Greenfield, L. I., in aid of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair.

Lucia B. Hazen, Fannie C. Hodges, Josephine Lewis, Lizzie Sharpe, Minnie Welch, Hattie Burgess, Edith Burgess, Ella McCutlum, Anna Blashfield, and "tiny little Mary Wing"—ten little girls of South Brooklyn, thought they would try what they could do for the soldiers, and they did a truly noble work. Mr. John H. Lewis gave them the use of the cottage No. 110 President street, which they fitted up, and held a Fair, from which the very handsome sum of $164 was netted to the Sanitary Commission.

Presents to the President of the United States.

Several of the most noteworthy articles exhibited in the Fair were sent as presents to President Lincoln. Among these were the elegantly drawn Proclamation of Emancipation of Mr. Paine, described in the History of the New England Kitchen, and a superb silk bed-spread, the gift of Mrs. Margaret E. Dodge, a lady eighty-one years of age. The correspondence attending the presentation of this latter gift is given below :

BROOKLYN, March 7, 1864.

To the President of the United States :—

DEAR SIR:—A few of your fellow-citizens have the honor of offering for your acceptance herewith, a silk " Bed-Spread," formed of the National Colors, and emblazoned with the Stars and Stripes and the National Eagle. It may interest you to know, that this fine specimen of needle-work is from the hands of a venerable and loyal woman, Mrs. Margaret E. Dodge, who has reached the age of eighty-one years; while the painting is the work of her equally loyal son, J. W. Dodge, a Union Refugee from Tennessee, whose property in the South has been put in jeopardy, if not already confiscated by the Rebel power. We know no depository for a household article thus designed and prepared with the noble purpose of aiding our Great National Charity, so appropriate as the Executive Mansion; were it may enure to the use of him who now holds the highest office in the nation; to whose charge the People have entrusted the Fortunes of the Republic when imminently threatened; and in whose wisdom and firmness, devout reliance on God, and honest devotion to the country, they confidently rest.

In behalf of Two Hundred Subscribers limited to One Dollar each.

I remain, with the highest personal respect,

Your friend and fellow-citizen,

FREDERICK A. FARLEY, D. D.,

Corresponding Secretary of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, April 1, 1864.

Reverend and Dear Sir :—

Permit me to return my most cordial thanks for the beautiful present transmitted by you, and for the kind and graceful manner in which it was conveyed.

I am very truly yours,

A. LINCOLN.

REVEREND FREDERICK A. FARLEY, D. D.

A Post-Office Letter.

We select for publication the following letter sent through the Post-Office of the Fair to the Corresponding Secretary, not because it was the best of the many capital missives which passed through that pleasant channel, but because of its ingenious and happy interweaving of the names of so many gentlemen prominently connected with the Fair:

DEAR DOCTOR:—

I've got your prospectus,
And am very sorry to learn
That the enterprise you're engaged in
Is such a Low concern.

Not only the Chair, but the body
Must be every one "Mud-Sills,"
Or at least but greasy mechanics,
For they all depend on Mills,

The Lott are decidedly common,
Their names have a mercantile ring,
But still to save them from ruin
I'm glad to observe one King.

That some are Wilde is no wonder,
That some are a Burdon not strange,
But I suppose that's no matter.
As long as they're good on 'Change.

I see you've got Bill and Benson,
May they sustain your hopes—
But whatever scheme you think on,
Be sure you know the Ropes.

The Brooks are at your service,
Where the Archer his tired feet laves,
You command both Woods and Waters,
And your Blossoms hide your Graves.

Beside the Ford your Huntsman
Its Fairbanks leaves for you,
The Fish and Ells are swimming,
Their loyal part to do.

The Swan leaves the Lake, and hastens,
The Crane from the Marsh doth fly,
And Hope like a Starr goes before you,
And Knight and Ryder draw nigh.

But I'm sure I don't approve
 Such mixed society,
 On your list are a Sawyer and Carman,
 With a Prince and Earle, I see.

But I'm glad for your sake, Doctor,
 And the sake of your noble cause,
 That the Miller and all the Fellows,
 Bring such abundant Storrs.

I wish I could come to your Fair
 Without harming my dignity,
 But I hope for the sake of the ladies,
 Fair-Weather it may be,

Yours truly,

HON. AUGUSTUS FITZ NOODLE.

FINAL CORRESPONDENCE WITH THE
UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION,
IN RELATION TO THE DISPOSITION OF THE FUNDS REALIZED FROM THE FAIR.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION, 823 BROADWAY, N. Y., }
MARCH, 22, 1864. }

To Messrs. Dwight Johnson, J. S. T. Stranahan, George S. Stephenson, Committee of Brooklyn and L. I Fair:

GENTLEMEN:—Having learned from your Committee that the proceeds of your brilliant Fair are likely to amount to the surprising sum of four hundred thousand dollars, I have the honor to make you the following proposition: Assuming that these funds are all to accrue to the benefit of the U. S. Sanitary Commission—for the sake of which your zeal and patience have created them—it has occurred to us that it might save you from embarrassment to indicate our wish that one quarter of the sum realized by your Fair should reach us not directly in the form of money, but in the shape of supplies, to be created by the admirable association of Brooklyn women so largely contributing to our dépôt of stores for the last two years. The Woman's Relief Association of Brooklyn is so zealous, methodical, and persistent, that we feel confident it will expend a hundred thousand dollars, through its regular machinery, in a manner even more for our benefit than if the money were in our own hands

I can lose no opportunity of repeating the expression of the admiration and gratitude the Commission feel for Brooklyn's abundant labors, and unwearied because principled exertions, in support of our cause. The Fair has been only the flower of a plant you have abundantly tended and watered and sunned for two years. I hope and believe the noble root will not, like the aloe, die of the magnificent bloom it has produced. May it live to your honor and praise as long as the war lasts.

Most gratefully and faithfully yours,

(Signed)

HENRY W. BELLOWES,
President.

BROOKLYN AND L. I. FAIR IN AID OF THE U. S. }
 SANITARY COMMISSION, BROOKLYN, March 28, 1864. }

To Henry W. Bellows, D. D., President of the U. S. Sanitary Commission :

DEAR SIR :—Your note of the 22d instant, addressed to Messrs. Johnson, Stranahan, and Stephenson, was duly communicated by them to the Joint Executive Committee ad interim, in whose behalf and by whose appointment they had called on you. The undersigned were immediately instructed by the above-named committee to reply that your proposition gives them great satisfaction, and that they adopt it to the full. Accordingly, and at the same time, they authorized and directed our Treasurer, Mr. James H. Frothingham, to pay over to the Treasurer of your noble Commission, Mr. Strong, the sum, in cash, of three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000) as the first instalment of the Fair held in this city for its aid. In so unhesitatingly allowing us to reserve the balance, or one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), for the purpose of having it accounted for from time to time to the Commission in the shape of supplies, to be as rapidly furnished through the agency of our Woman's Relief Association, as the exigencies of the service may require, we are glad to recognize only a merited compliment to the ever-active, judicious, efficient, and unwearied efforts of the women of Brooklyn.

The plant to which your refer will not be allowed to die in the hands which have reared it. It has struck its roots deep in loyal soil; and the patriotic love and zeal which have thus far tended and nourished it are by no means exhausted. While the war lasts they will last, and the fruitage be renewed and reproduced in constantly ripening fullness, according to the needs of the hour and of our heroic and suffering men in field or hospital.

With truest regard, we are, dear Sir, faithfully yours,

(Signed)

A. A. LOW,
President.

BROOKLYN, March 26, 1864.

George T. Strong, Esq., Treasurer U. S. Sanitary Commission :

DEAR SIR :—In conformity with a resolution of the Joint Sub-Executive Committee of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair in aid of the United States Sanitary Commission, I have the honor to pay over to you the sum of three hundred thousand dollars on account of the proceeds of the Fair.

Herewith I beg to enclose my check for that amount on the Nassau Bank of Brooklyn, to your order; which be good enough to acknowledge at your convenience.

With great respect, yours very truly,

(Signed)

JAMES H. FROTHINGHAM,
Treasurer.

No. 68 WALL STREET, NEW YORK. {
March 28, 1864 }

MY DEAR SIR :—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 26th instant, and of the sum of three hundred thousand dollars on account of the proceeds of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair.

I beg leave to return to the committees of patriotic and public-spirited citizens by whom this Great Fair has been conducted with so much discretion, energy, and success, the sincere thanks of the United States Sanitary Commission for this most munificent contribution to its Treasury; and also to congratulate yourself and your associates in this work on the fact, that its results are nearly double what has been raised for army relief by like agencies in any other city of the Union.

I am very respectfully and truly,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

GEORGE T. STRONG,

Treasurer United States Sanitary Commission.

JAS. H. FROTHINGHAM, Esq.,

Treasurer, etc.

UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION, {
NEW YORK AGENCY, 823 BROADWAY,
NEW YORK, March 29, 1864. }

A. A. Low, Esq., President, and F. A. Farley, D. D., Cor. Sec., of the Brooklyn and Long Island Fair.

GENTLEMEN :—Your favor of yesterday is just received, and I rejoice that our action is approved by your committee. Since my last communication to your Board, our Treasurer informs me that he has received your Treasurer's check for three hundred thousand dollars, being the first instalment of the total amount of $400,000 realized from your Fair. As this is by far the largest amount ever put into our Treasury at one time by any community, I feel that it deserves the most marked expression of our gratitude and wonder. We really know not which sentiment prevails—amazement at your prodigious success, or satisfaction that our Commission was the object for which you labored so hard and so victoriously!

Whatever New York or Philadelphia may hereafter do for us, they cannot take away your honorable claim as the shining example which has raised their standard and stimulated their efforts. Brooklyn, by the only thoroughly approvable kind of secession, has henceforth declared her independence of New York. She has vindicated her right and power to lead; and we shall no longer hear her spoken of as an appendix to the Metropolis. She is at least entitled to be the second volume of that great work, the Commercial Capital, of which New York is the first. Rather may I not say that

New York and Brooklyn form a binary star ; and that if our magnitude is greater, the lustre just exhibited in yours is brighter. With the heartiest wishes for the growth, prosperity and repute of Brooklyn, and with profound thanks for the noble, persistent support given the U. S. Sanitary Commission by its citizens, I remain, gentlemen, with the warmest personal regard your obliged friend and servant,

HENRY W. BELLOWES,

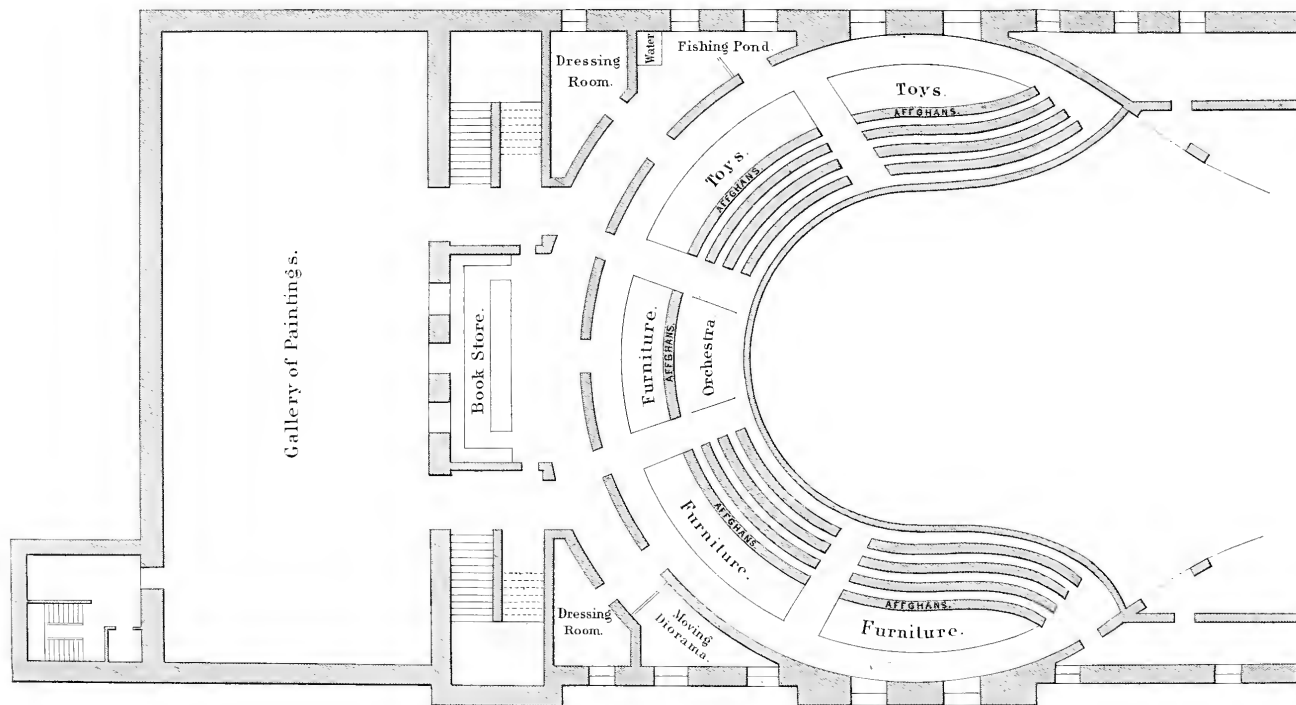

President U. S. Sanitary Commission.
